What Else Is New? Borough Road Repairs Are Behind Schedule

Princeton Borough is currently running about ten months behind in its road repair schedule. Two projects — North Harrison Street from Nassau Street to Mershon Drive and Maple Street from Spruce Street to the dead end — were supposed to have been begun in September, 1987. Target start-up date is now July of this year.

Six projects that Borough officials had announced would begin in October, 1987, are now targeted for an August 1 start-up. They are: Library Place from Stockton Street to Hodge Road, Lafayette Road, Hunter Road, Boudinot Street, Lilac Lane, and Springdale Road.

The proposed new road from the rear of Davidson's Market to Olden Street was also supposed to have been begun in September, 1987. However, Borough Engineer Carl Peters said he is awaiting direction as to its design. "This will be brought up again with Mayor and Council," he said, "hopefully at their next meeting."

Road reconstruction of South Harrison Street, from Nassau Street to the Township line, is expected to begin in August. In October, the Borough hopes to begin work on Wiggins and Hamilton Streets, from Witherspoon to Harrison Streets. Reconstruction of Prospect Avenue, between Washington Road and Harrison Street, cannot begin until Princeton University completes its utility work. This could be as early as October, said Mr. Peters.

Beginning in the spring of 1989, the Borough plans to begin road repair on Chambers Street, Vandeventer Avenue, Witherspoon Street, Palmer Square, Clay Street, Mooore Street, Spruce Street, and Maple Street.

Residents File Complaint Against Lawrence Board Over Agreement with ETS

Two Carter Road residents and the Carter-Rosedale Residential Defense Organization have filed a complaint in Mercer County Superior Court against the Lawrence Township Planning Board.

The complaint was filed Tuesday by Neilsen Lewis, attorney for Theodore Cross of 233 Carter Road, Peter Lawson-Johnston of 215 Carter Road and the Carter Road residents. The complaint argues that the Lawrence Township Planning Board acted in "an arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable" manner when it approved a Stipulation of Settlement with Educational Testing Service on March 23 that in turn constituted approval of ETS expansion plans.

New Director of the Princeton Public Library Ready to Tackle Tasks of Parking, Expansion

When the trustees of the Public Library gather Saturday for their annual evaluation and planning retreat, the primary topic will be how to plan for expansion of the library building.

The library has recently completed a survey of adult users, updating previous surveys, on how the library is used, by whom, how often, and at what times of day. During this year's municipal budget hearings, the library was granted $50,000 by Borough Council and Township Committee as a capital expense to develop an expansion plan. The process is expected to involve a broad-based citizens' advisory committee, architectural and financial feasibility studies, and the advice of national library experts.

Jacquelyn Thresher, who succeeded Robert Staples as library director six months ago, seems already to have a clear understanding of the Princeton Public Library and of the community. Ms. Thresher began work here last October 1, with just 3½ weeks in which to get ready to defend the 1988 library budget prepared by her predecessor. Because of her careful documentation of need and her cooperative attitude, she was able to win just about everything she asked for, which had not been the case in recent years.

Ms. Thresher began her tenure here by meeting individually with every member of the staff and then implementing a team management approach, with the department heads as members of the team. She has installed a new phone system to replace the antiquated rotary instruments and inadequate three lines that were in place when she arrived.

She is replacing the library's manual accounting system, and the single electric typewriter in the administrative office, with a microcomputer and accounting and word-processing software authorized by the governing bodies. Implementation of the computerized circulation system, ordered before she arrived, is next on the agenda.

This highly experienced librarian, who came to Princeton after 12 years in the Westchester County library system, seems undaunted by the prospect of tackling the complex and interlocking problems of downtown parking and or what it declares are unlawful actions on the part of the board, the complaint asks that the March 23 action be set aside and the original, December 1, 1987, denial of the ETS site plan declared valid. A tie, 4-4, vote of the Planning Board on that date constituted a denial of the ETS application to build 447,000 square feet of new office space.

ETS sued the board in January, declaring that it was entitled to approval of its development application as a matter of law. There were negotiations in February between representatives of the board and ETS to resolve the matter, with the result that a hearing was set for March 23. At the hearing, a proposed Stipulation of Settlement was outlined, which included a more specific traffic management timetable and enforcement provisions. The board voted 6 to 1 with one abstention to approve the settlement and thus to approve the ETS expansion plan.

In their complaint, the Carter Road residents maintain that the Planning Board violated the Open Public Meetings Act and the Municipal Land Use Law by holding closed session negotiations with ETS. They also argue that the Planning Board had no legal right to reverse its December 1987 decision, because no new material had been presented other than what the complaint refers to as "minor and insubstantial" changes in the traffic management program.

The complaint also alleges that the members of the board were already strongly predisposed to approve the settlement agreement and that the plaintiffs and other interested parties were "deprived of a meaningful hearing and participation" in the process. Further, it is argued that the Planning Board should have ruled on the issue of its jurisdiction to hear the application, an issue related to the question of proper or improper conditional use which was raised by the plaintiffs in the hearings. The issue was disposed of by the Zoning Officer, who, the complaint states, exceeded his decision making authority by ruling, as he did, that ETS activities were permitted.

Single-User Ordinance. In a separate but related action, Mr. Lewis has written a letter to Mayor Carol Harle and members of the Lawrence Township Council asking the Council not to reverse the single-user ordinance which it adopted last September. That ordinance, which prohibits ETS from leasing any of its proposed new office space, was adopted by the Council last September on recommendation of the Lawrence Planning Board, in keeping with its revised Master Plan adopted last July.

The Stipulation of Settlement between the Lawrence Planning Board and ETS contained a provision that the board would "recommend" to the Council that the ordinance be amended to allow ETS to lease out space.

ETS would like to lease space, partly to take advantage of today's building costs and partly to pay for the proposed expansion. Residents point out that ETS was allowed to establish its headquarters in a rural, residential area of Lawrence Township in the understanding that it would be the sole occupant.

They fear that rezoning to accommodate ETS' "commercial office development," as Mr. Lewis puts it, "would send a strong signal to developers and the public that Lawrence Township can be pressured by litigation into decisions suiting big development interests."

Garden Theatre Closed Until Licensing Decision

On Tuesday night, May 3, when the tate shows of Moonstruck and The Last Emperor were over, the Garden Theatre was scheduled to go dark. It will remain closed Wednesday and Thursday. On Thursday night, the theater's management is expected to appear before Borough Council to ask for its license renewal. If granted, the theater would reopen on Friday.

Sameric Corporation officials and their attorneys appeared before last Tuesday's Council meeting to request that their license be renewed and that they again be permitted to serve food. About three weeks earlier, Council had banned food from being served in the theater because of a continuing mouse infestation.

There was agreement that almost all the structural repairs to the storage room had been made. This was the room, inspected on January 7 by Health Inspector Drew Scalessa, that was home to popcorn bags contaminated with insulation and many mouse droppings.

However, concern was expressed during the hour-long discussion about whether the theater had been cleaned sufficiently. Mr. Scalessa said that an inspection showed that popcorn and candy were found near the front movie screen and under various seats, thus allowing a food source for mice. He said he had found more mouse droppings, and one rat dropping. "This is the longest rodent infestation I can ever recall," he said. "Usually places clean up debris. This is still attracting mice and at least one rat."

Councilman Mark Freda, who had been with Mr. Scalessa during the inspection, agreed with him that the theater did not look well cleaned. Councilman Rodney Fisk, however, said that the amount of food on the floor was small, and that be was impressed with the effort that Sameric, the theater's managers, had made. "It has gone from an F to a C; it doesn't deserve to be flunked out."

Pat Charles, one of Sameric's attorneys, said the company had spent $30,000 on the renovation of the Garden. Borough Building Inspector Bernard ("Red") Glover said his Department's figure showed the cost of the work to be $15,000.

Councilman Marvin Reed told the meeting that there is a suspicion on the part of some members of Council that Princeton University is not interested in seeing a theater in that area, and that if Council closed down Sameric the University wouldn't care. Princeton University owns the building that houses the Garden Theatre; it leases it to the Sameric Corporation.

Reached afterwards, University Vice President Eugene McPartland said he hopes the theater will not go out of business. "There is a firm desire that it be an operating theater," he said. If Sameric did not have its license renewed, he said the University would hope to find someone to run the theater well.

"Rise and Shine" by Raffi —

This is the album that started Raffi on his rise to the top of the children's music business. This light-hearted collection of traditional and original titles includes such favorites as "Thumbelina" and "Wheels on the Bus." Also included are two French folk songs to mix in with "Let's do the Numbers Rumba." It's easy to see how this Canadian artist appeals to listeners of all ages.

Council seemed uncertain of how to proceed, the obvious desire to keep a theater in town weighing against negative reports by the Health Department. Councilman John Huntoon proposed that the theater be closed that night (Tuesday, April 29) and that management return on Thursday, May 5, to show that the theater had been cleaned.

Mr. Reed said that the theater did not need ten days to clean up. Agreeing with Mr. Reed, Mr. Freda moved that the closing begin on Tuesday, May 3; that a health inspection take place on Thursday, May 5: and that Council decide on Thursday night whether to renew the license.

A tie vote on this motion (Mark Freda, Jane Terpstra, and Mildred Trotman for; Marvin Reed, Rodney Fisk and John Huntoon against) was broken by Mayor Barbara Sigmund, who supported it.

For many years the Borough's Sunday cutoff for serving alcoholic drinks in a public establishment has been 9 p.m. Then, last month, a letter was sent to Borough Council by a family living on The Great Road asking the governing body to allow the bar at the Nassau Inn to stay open until 10 p.m. on Sunday — at least on the Sunday of their daughter's wedding reception.

Council agreed, and decided to permit drinks to be served until 10 on Sundays. It asked Borough Attorney Michael tterbert to draft an ordinance to this effect. He did.

When Mr. Herbert read the ordinance at last Tuesday night's Council meeting, Councilman Marvin Reed said he'd like to raise the cutoff to midnight. Councilman Rodney Fisk went a bit further. "My understanding is that we would make it the same as other nights: 2 a.m."

Councilman Mark Freda asked whether Council really wanted to encourage bars to stay open until 2 o'clock on Sundays. "We may force some to stay open to stay competitive. We don't need people out drinking every night of the week."

Mr. Reed reiterated that he didn't see any logic in having bars close at 10 p.m. Councilman John Huntoon said he didn't believe there was any logic to it. "Didn't someone come to us with a letter?" he asked.

Council's eventual vote to introduce an ordinance that would change the Sunday night closing hour for bars from 9 p.m. to midnight prompted Mayor Sigmund to wrap up the proceedings by remarking, "the lunatic middle won."

Class Rank Eliminated At Princeton High School

Starting this fall, Princeton High School will officially end its offering of class rank to colleges. The decision was made in response to coocerns that the school's high grade point averages distort rank in class.

High School Principal John Sakala also announced plans to discontinue the selection of valedictorian and salutatorian: the two graduates with the highest grade point totals who speak at graduation ceremonies.

Starting this June, the school will graduate six students summa cum laude, six magna cum laude, and six cum laude. Speakers will be elected by a vote of the senior class.

The school will still compile rank in class; however, students' college applications will note that class rank is not available. Students may choose to enclose their class rank with their applications. Class rank will be provided certain institutions, such as the military academies, which would not otherwise consider the application.

Mr. Sakala described a senior who had received all A's, with the exception of two B-plusses and one B, through her four years at the school. She ranked in the 86th percentile in the senior class, which is considered to be an unusually achieving one, even for Princeton High.

He explained that colleges looking at her class rank might give a student coming from a less rigorous school, who was ranked higher, greater consideration in the selection process.

The principal said that only a few public high schools, including Scarsdale High School in Scarscale, N.Y., had eliminated class rank. It is a more common practice among private schools. Area private schools that do not offer class rank include The Lawrenceville School and Princeton Day School.

Mr. Sakala also announced his desire to begin a faculty advisor program with the September freshman class. This, program, which he will propose to the Board of Education later this month, will assign each incoming freshman to a volunteer member of the faculty. Each teacher would have about ten students, and they would remain together for the full four years.

A survey of the high school faculty, said Mr. Sakala, found about 30 interested in participating in the program. The freshman class is expected to consist of about 187 students. There would be no additional compensation to the teachers.

Mr. Sakala said the program would provide "an extra pair of hands and eyes to watch the progress of the kids" and would also create a larger pool of teachers for writing college recommendation letters, teachers who would have known the student for four years.

Florida Visitor Drowns In Community Park Pond

The death last week of a 49-year-old North Fort Myers, Fla., resident, who was discovered floating face down in a pond in Community Park North, has been classified by Township police as an accidental drowning.

The death of Jean H. Preiss is still under investigation. "We haven't reached any definite conclusion," said Lt. David Potts this week. "We are still waiting to see if anyone comes forth with more information."

Lt. Potts reported that no one has come forth, however, since the body was first found last Wednesday morning. There was no evidence of foul play and an autopsy concluded that the victim had died of drowning and hypothermia. The County medical examiner is awaiting the results of toxicological tests to see if alcohol or drugs were involved. The victim left no notes behind, Lt. Potts said.

The victim was pronounced dead at Princeton Medical Cen-there have already been positive results. Skateboarding, says Mrs. Nunes, has given her son enormous confidence in his body, and been responsible, she believes, for an improvement in his academic performance.

Their goal, reports Mrs. Nunes, is to get as many support names as possible. The Middle School has helped in distributing questionnaires. To add to the 25 to 30 names in her son's club, the ESA has offered to provide the names of 200 to 300 members. Adults have offered help with insurance.

When all are collected there will be about 300 names, predicts Mrs. Nunes. "We have a lot of parents supporting us."

The second prong of their plan is to submit the names and the need before Township Committee and request a site or building where kids can practice skateboarding in safety and under supervision.

"I can see only positive things from what he's doing," said Mrs. Nunes. "I support him fully." She urges anyone who wants to add their support to call her at 683-0310.

Three Cars Are Stolen; Value Totals $50,000

Three parked cars, including a $36,000 BMW, were stolen in Princeton last week.

The 1985 beige BMW had been parked on Nassau Street near Chambers when it was stolen April 22 between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. The owner, a South Orange resident, told police he had locked the car and had the keys in his possessinn.

A locked 1981 VW, valued at $3,400 was taken betweon 1 and 4 Friday afternoon from Wilton Street where it had been parked in front of the victim's home.

Township police report that a 1988 gray Ford Thunderbird, valued at $10,000, was stolen overnight during the weekend from the front drive of a Mercer Road home. A Hertz rental car, the T-Bird had been rented, police said, in New York City.

The victim, who discovered the theft Sunday morning, told police that he couldn't find the keys and didn't remember if he had left them in the car or not.

In one of two acts of criminal mischief involving cars, a Montadale Road resident told police that someone had used a sharp instrument to scratch the entire side of her white Mercedes 500 SEL while it was parked last week in the Princeton Shopping Center. Estimated cost to repair the damage: $3,000.

A Harrison Street resident faces an approximate $500 repair bill, after someone during the weekend drove over the front yard near Franklin Avenue, causing considerable damage, police report, to about 40 feet of lawn.

18 Dresses Stolen. An assortment of 18 linen and cotton knit dresses, valued at $1,366, were shoplifted Thursday between 11 and noon from Talbots on Nassau Street. There are no suspects.

A store manager told police that the area near the front entrance had just been restocked with 30 dresses.

Two denim jackets, valued at $40 each, were stolen last week from the student rack area at the University Store. Both victims are University students. A student's $50 denim jacket was taken early Friday morning from a coat room in the Cottage Club. In the pockets were her ID and a $45 gold key chain.

Township police list another item was that was stolen a week ago at the Friends of Princeton Open Space building in the Mountain Lakes Estate. Taken from an office rented by the Sierra Club of New Jersey was a telephone answering machine valued at $120. Lt. David Potts reported that the intruder climbed a roof and broke a bathroom window on the north side to enter the home.

Police Seeking Driver Who Exposed Himself

A driver who exposed himself last week to a 26-year-old Princeton Graduate School student, is being sought by Borough police.

According to police, the victim was walking on Prospect Avenue near Olden late Thursday afternoon when an old model white station wagon pulled up next to her. Thinking the driver wanted directions, the student walked over to the car. The driver is described as a white male in his mid-30s, clean shaven with medium-length, curly brown hair.

Smoke Forces Tenants To Evacuate Building

An overloaded basement incinerator that sent smoke to the top floors forced tenants Sunday afternoon to evacuate the Lawrence Apartments building off West Drive.

Fire Chief Richard McKee, 16 firemen and three fire trucks responded to a 1:46 call. The tall building was evacuated while firemen put out the incinerator fire and cleared away smoke from the top floors. There was no damage.

Three Students Charged With Alcohol Violations

Three Princeton University students have been charged by Borough police with alcohol violations.

The driver of a car stopped by police, David Jasper, 21, has been issued a summons for an open container of alcohol in a motor vehicle; his passenger, Kelly Sather, 18, has been charged with possession of alcoholic beverage by a minor. A third student, John McGovern, 18, has been charged with serving alcohol to a minor. He and Sather are scheduled to appear in Borough court May 18, Jasper on June 20.

Jasper's car was first observed around 6:30 Saturday evening on Witherspoon Street by Detectives Ralph Terracciano and Dennis McManimon from their patrol car. The officers noticed the driver drinking, from a clear cup, what appeared to be a mixed drink. They approached the car in the Tulane West lot and determined that both occupants — Jasper and Sather — had open containers of alcohol in the car.

Further investigation revealed that both had just left Tiger Inn on Prospect Avenue, where police learned McGovern was working as a bartender. McGovern, police said, had been hired by the club for the evening.

Under state law, bartenders at licensed clubs have to be 21 or older. The private University eating clubs are not licensed and Chief Carnevale added that police are investigating this area to determine if any more laws may have been broken.

Four Juveniles Charged. Juvenile drinking has been a problem for years in Princeton, and still is.

Princeton, with its schools, attracts a large number of young people and the arrest last week of four juveniles was consistent, Chief Carnevale commented, with the ongoing effort by Borough police to contain the drinking of alcohol by minors.

Saturday night, Sgt. James Agins saw two youths standing in front of Varsity Liquors, 234 Nassau Street. He saw them approach several adults with the obvious intent of asking them to make a liquor purchase. They were turned down.

When a customer came out of the store carrying several packages which he placed in the trunk of his car, the youths approached him, money was allegedly exchanged, and the adult handed over a six-pack of beer.

Det. Agins attempted to arrest both the adult and the youths, but was successful in apprehending only the juveniles, 15 and 16, both residents of West Windsor. They will be processed as juvenile delinquents, charged with possession of alcohol by a minor.

The following night, shortly before 10, Det. John Reading witnessed the same modus operandi in front of Community Liquors on Witherspoon Street: two girls approaching adults and being turned down before another adult agreed to purchase a half-pint of vodka for them.

The youths, a 15-year-old from Doylestown, Pa. and a 16-year-old Franklin Lakes resident, were charged as minors in possession of alcohol. The adult, David Snook, 32, of Yardville, was charged with purchasing alcohol for minors and faces a court hearing on May 18.

Trespasser Charged. Brent Eaton, 18, of Cleveland Lane, Kingston, has been issued a summons for defiant trespass at Princeton High School.

Norman Van Arsdalen, the school's vice-principal, who called police, said that Eaton had entered the school Monday after being warned previously not to trespass on the PHS grounds. Eaton was arrested by Det. McManimon, the Borough juvenile officer, issued a summons signed by Mr. Van Arsdalen, and released.

Support for Jesse Jackson

The Princeton Area Friends of Jesse Jackson will present "An Evening in Support of The Reverend Jesse Jackson" Saturday from 7 to 9:30 at First Baptist Church.

Guest speakers will be the Rev. Deforest Soaries, alternate delegate to the 1988 Democratic Convention, and Doris Colona Travis, author of Pardon Me While I Be Myself. There will also be film presentations of Mr. Jackson and song selections by Kary Stubbs, tenor.

A $15 contribution per person will be solicited.

Victim is Cut by Bottle In Aggravated Assault

A 23-year-old Clay Street resident waa assaulted last Wednesday evening as he walked on Clay Street.

According to Chief Michael Carnevale, words were exchanged between the victim and his assailant, George Kornegay, 35, whose last known address is Leigh Avenue. Both men, Chief Carnevale said, had been arrested in the March 17 drug raids conducted by police here which resulted in 14 arrests. The words exchanged between the two, he said, related to the drug raid.

Chief Carnevale reported that after Kornegay had called the victim over and said something to him, be smashed a brandy bottle over the victim's left eye. The two scuffled and wrestled with each other before the victim managed to break away and walk to nearby Princeton Medical Center where be received eight sutures to close his laceration. He called police from the hospital.

Police have issued a warrant for Kornegay's arrest, charging him with aggravated assault. Chief Carnevale said it is believed Kornegay is presently living in Trenton and the Trenton PD has been alerted.

Second Assault. Borough police are also continuing their investigation into the assault of a middle-aged Princeton resident while she was walking at 12:30 Sunday morning on Harrison Street between Ewing and Franklin.

The victim, carrying a purse and a book, was grabbed from behind. It is not clear at this point, commented Chief Carnevale, what the intent was. "It was not a sexual assault nor was there any attempt to take the purse."

Police said the assailant, described only as a white male about 5-10, placed his right hand over the victim's mouth and his left arms around her arms. The victim broke away and ran to her home but did not notify police until the following morning.

The victim was treated the next day at the Medical Center for bruises beneath her eyes and contusions of the left side of her face and lip. She also sustained a small cut under her chin which police believe may have been caused by a ring or wristwatch the suspect may have been wearing.

Borough Plans to File New Rules with HMFA

Council has given Borough Director of Development Frank Slimak its permission to refile the Borough's affordable housing application with the State Housing and Mortgage Finance Agency (HMFA). The agency rejected the Borough's previous apptication because it used employment as a priority for low- and moderate-income housing

HMFA's criteria restrictions do not apply to the 37 of 68 affordable housing units that will be made available at market rates.

The application, which Mr. Slimak expects to file this week, would cover only the first 24 units, to be built on Hamilton Avenue and John Street. Of these, 13 would be for low- and moderate-iocome families. HMFA will be asked to provide a $6000 graot for each unit, plus make mortgage money available.

Before giving Mr. Slimak permission to refile, Borough mayor Sigmund called the HMFA "dead wroog."

She said that Mt. Laurel connects housing with employment, aod that the Borough's criteria fit into the real spirit of Mt. Laurel. "But to get the program started, we have to follow the requirements of the State of New Jersey," she said. "They're funding it."

Dinky Proposal Topic Of Committee Hearing

The State Assembly Transporation Committee has requested NJ Transit to reconsider John Street resident Rodney Fisk's proposal to take over the operation of the Dinky. Mr. Fisk has been trying, for several years, to obtain control of the line from NJ Transit and operate it. He has said that the privatization of the line would eliminate the $1,000-a-day subsidy curreotly provided to the Dinky by the State.

According to Mr. Fisk, the committee requested NJ Transit to reconsider the proposal, which it bad previously rejected. It must then report back to the Assembly committee in a reasonable amount of time.

The committee does not have the power to enforce this request. However, it can ask the Assembly and Senate to pass legislation to this effect.

"All five members of the committee were distressed at NJ Transit's cavalier rejection of the plan," said Mr. Fisk. He added that, after the panel met, NJ Transit officials told him that they had wasted enough time on his "scheme" aod would let him know if they would sit down with him.

Mr. Fisk says his operation of the Dinky would provide improved service at the same fare structure aod range of ticket options, more parking, a waiting room that would remain open all day, and late-night trains on weekends. He would also reduce the three-persoo crew to one, lower salaries for train personnel, aod switch to dieset fuel.

ough court and five in Township court.

In the Borough, Richard A. Bergeron, 120 Canal Road, paid four fines: $20 each for unregistered vehicle, overdue inspection, and driving while suspended plus $115 and six months suspension of license for no insurance. David M. Hagadorn, 22 Charlton Street, paid $515 for driving while his license was suspended.

Others: John D. Breen, 23 Pheasant Hill Road, $75, careless driving; Chiuhsiah Lee, 15 Haskel Drive, West Windsor, $65, improper passing, and John W. Konvalinka, 24 Gordon Way, $60, failure to give proper signal.

In Township court, three were fined $65 each: Katherine Vanrechtengoodman, 4F Brookline Court, red light; Raymond W. Wong, 423 Lawrenceville Avenue, Lawrenceville, speeding, and Jeanette T. Skodacek, 163 Princeton Arms North, Cranbury, failure to stop at a railway crossing. Jerome B. McGowan, 144 John Street, paid $75 for speeding and $40 for careless driving.

For puncturing tires, Samuel S. Simone, 339 Mount Lucas Road, was fined $515 and sentenced to 30 days in jail as a disorderly person. Judge Sydney Souter then suspended the fine and jail on the condition that Mr. Simone be subject to probation for one year and evaluation by the County Prosecutor's Office.

Windsor Man Is Charged In NYC Hostage Incident

Upset over a dispute with his divorced wife, an East Windsor resident on Monday morning held 14 workers hostage for three hours in the lower Manhattan building were his former wife worked.

William P. Saunders, 43, of Dutch Neck Road, later surrendered to police, after he had let the last hostage go without harm. He has been charged with unlawful imprisonment, reckless endangerment and possession of an explosive device — all felonies — and with possession of a handgun. Mr. Saunders had brandished what turned out to be a toy gun and a fake, plastic bomb when he entered the 25th floor of the AT&T building on Courtlandt Street around 9:20, seeking his ex-wife who is employed there. Officials said that Mr. Saunders was apparently dissatisfied with the custody agreement concerning their daughter. The couple were divorced three years ago.

Mrs. Saunders had signed a harassment complaint against her former husband because he had allegedly threatened to kill her. Saturday night, after Superior Court Judge Richard Barlow Jr. had authorized a temporary restraining order, the Saunders had argued on the platform of the Princeton Junction train station. Mrs. Saunders went to her West Windsor home after the confrontation and called police.

When Mr. Saunders arrived in New York, his former wife was in a Trenton court again, trying to obtain a permanent restraining order against him. When she called her office to report that she would be late in arriving, Mr. Saunders took the phone and allegedly said that he wanted justice to be done.

He then herded 14 employees into a room, but he was not a vigilant hostage-taker. He allowed one employee to leave when she told him she had to go to the bathroom. Others subsequently escaped when Mr. Saunders also allowed them to leave to go to a rest room.

Meanwhile, a police negotiating team, bomb squad and New York City police had responded to the scene. They sealed off the area, causing a massive traffic jam. Around 11:30, there was only one hostage left and Mr. Saunders allegedly commented: "We're the only ones here; you might as well go, too."

For the past six months, Mr. Saunders has been employed as a dark room technician at the Princeton Packet. A former free-lance photographer, he had worked for brief periods in the 1970s at the Trenton Times and Trentonian newspapers.

He has had previous encounters with the law. In the mid-70s, he served a year in jail for a sex crime, and four years ago, he was indicted for forgery after he allegedly signed his wife's name on her $614.93 paycheck and deposited it in his account. He avoided arrest when he moved out of the state but this February he turned himself in on the charge and was later released.

Mr. Saunders is currently in custody awaiting arraignment by a New York court.

young teenagers came together to take the first steps toward developing a long-term program for youth activities in Princeton. About 20 teenagers were joined hy a number of adults, including Linda Meisel of Corner House, School Board President Marjorie Smith, the Youth Fund's Jane Silverman, PTO Council President Eva Collins, and Middle School teacher Ron Celestin.

The teenagers, mostly from Princeton High School, with a sprinkling of Princeton Day School students, broke into three discussion groups. At the conclusion of the meeting, they reported their findings.

During the discussion by the adults, Mrs. Smith said that every single youth meeting she had attended had come up with an Electric Playground or Hard Rock Cafe type of facility. Another possibility, she noted, would be having commercial establishments take turns in providing a place for young people.

Mrs. Silverman said a youth calendar was needed, and Mrs. Collins told the group that a successful teen center on the South Shore of Long Island had been housed in a library, when the library expanded.

The idea of a town-wide Harrison Street Bridge dance was voiced by hoth the adults and the students.

The teenagers, mostly freshmen and sophomores, meanwhile bemoaned the fact that, as one said, "There is nothing to do but go from Victor's to Burger King, from Victor's to Burger King, and then home. The Youth Cafe is too out of the way, and the problem is that it's an old gym."

Another said, "Even if it is an old gym, even if there isn't anything to do we should have a bulletin board in town.

The first group reported that its members felt there was not enough spectator interest in school sports, due largely to the lack of appropriate fields. Also, the students felt a lack of interschool relations. "We never do anything with other schools."

An "Under-21" club, which would be built by Princeton with its neighboring towns, was also advocated. However, it was cautioned that transportation would need to be provided. Several of the students wished for more public transportation, a la the old loop bus.

The students had been asked to evaluate the strengths and weakesses of a number of parts of their life. One was school, and this brought complaints by pupils at the high school that guidance counsellors were remote and that teachers do not provide help.

There were also complaints that the high school sports facilities were poor, that 20 minutes was not a long enough time to eat lunch, and that there was a lot of college pressure. Regarding drugs and alcohol, the feeling was that they were around, but there was not a lot of pressure to get involved. One student summed it up this way: "There's no peer pressure, but lots of college pressure."

Mrs. Collins said that one of the roles adults could play was advocacy. She pointed out that the only students who get tickets for parking near the high school are PHS students. "They're our kids, and they get tickets. That's the message they are getting."

A steering committee of students will continue working on this topic during the summer months.

Recording for the Blind Celebrates Thirty Years

The Princeton unit of Recording for the Blind celebrated its founding 30 years ago at the Unitarian Church last Sunday, and honored the volunteers whose service has allowed the unit to function.

The event was highlighted by the recognition of five volunteers who have been active since the beginning. They are Ruth Bogia, Ruth Cherniss, Mary-Adele Mather, Iri Scarff and Barbara Smoyer.

Other volunteers recognized have worked at the unit for five, 10, 20 and 25 years. In addition, Nancy Amick's special contributions were noted.

Ms. Amick began experimenting in 1962 with pie fluters, dressmaker's wheels and blobs of glue to produce raised-line drawings to accompany certain texts so that the blind student could "feel" the graphic illustrations. Ms. Amick's techniques evolved into an art form which she continues to execute for the Foundation for the Blind.

Others present were Township Mayor and Deputy Mayor Kate Litvack and Phyllis Marchand, Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund, and representatives from the national headquarters of Recording for the Blind in West Windsor.

Representatives of the Lions Club were also honored at the reception. The Lions have contributed thousands of dollars and many volunteer hours to the unit because assisting the visually impaired is one of their main outreach programs.

The Princeton unit was started by Alma Rotnam, its first chairman, who guided its fortunes for many years. Mrs. Rotnam was assisted by Peter Putnam and Richard Paynter Jr., whose daughter-in-law, Patricia, is still active in the unit.

A group of 21 Princeton residents formed the privately supported, nonprofit organization, one of the earliest chapters in a nation-wide program to provide free educational materials to the visually impaired. There are 29 such units in the United States today.

The Princeton unit opened March 10, 1958, with four soundproof booths in two basement rooms at 100 Stockton Street. Since the unit's inception, the trustees of Princeton Theological Seminary have generously supplied space for its operation. In its present location, 36A Hibben Road, it is open 4½ days and four evenings each week.

Anne Young, the executive director, welcomes volunteers who have 1½ hours to give at least one day a week. She will discuss available times with anyone interested, and may be reached at 921-6534.

During the past year the Princeton unit has recorded 227 books. This effort required 4,697 hours of reading and involved 288 volunteers, who collectively devoted 16,772 hours to the task.

New Jersey and Ewe Saturday on the Farm

"New Jersey and Ewe will be Perfect Together" on Saturday, when Howell Farm holds a day of sheep shearing, sheep herding, sheep-meeting and sheep-to-shawling.

The program, from 10 to 4, includes herding and shearing demonstrations at 11, 1, and 3 by champion shepherd Jim Shearer of Mountville, Pa.

If You've Lost The Tax Deduction For Your Loan Interest, Here's The Smart Way To Get It Back.

AT NEW JERSEY NATIONAL BANK

Bit by bit you're losing your deduction for the interest on your monthly loans and bill payments. You see, interest on car loans, charge cards and anything else the IRS considers "personal interest" is only 40% deductible for 1988. And by 1991, they won't be deductible at all.

But there are ways to hold on to your deduction. EquiPower® and Fixed Rate Home Equity loans from New Jersey National. Unlike personal loans, they may help you keep 100% of your valuable tax deduction.

However, the tax advantage isn't the only reason to open a secured loan or line of credit with New Jersey National. Our knowledgeable staff of professionals can explain other advantages outlined below and help you determine which New Jersey National loan is the smartest way for you to borrow money.

COMPETITIVE RATE With both New Jersey National loans you'll reduce your monthly payment by restructuring your debt. Choose EquiPower with a variable rate. Or Fixed Rate Home Equity which gives you a guaranteed rate so you'll know right now what your monthly payments will be. You can also choose from several repayment methods, including extended payment terms with the Fixed Rate Home Equity loan.

FLEXIBLE AMOUNTS With EquiPower and Fixed Rate Home Equity you can borrow from $5,000 to $120,000 or more.

APPLY ONCE If you need [illegible] for the future, you'll appreciate the convenience of an EquiPower Revolving Line of Credit. You pay interest only on what you've borrowed. And as you pay back the money, it becomes available again. You never have to apply for another loan. When you need money, simply write yourself a check, use your credit card or access MAC®, their 24-hour banking service. EquiPower can also be used as overdraft protection for your New Jersey National checking account. And gives you a rebate of 1% on credit card purchases.

FEES WAIVED Apply for your EquiPower or Fixed Rate Home Equity loan by May 31, and you won't have to pay application fees or closing costs.

APPLY TODAY To find out more about a New Jersey National Loan, or to apply, call 1-800-542-LOAN. Or stop by your nearest New Jersey National office. It's smart not to lose interest on your loans.

Offer good through May 31, 1988. Check with your tax advisor about specific eligibility for interest deductibility. Closing costs waiver does not include the cost of title insurance which is required on mortgages over $[illegible]

Throughout the day, visitors can meet twin lambs, wash wood on-the-hoof, and try carding, spinning, dyeing and weaving wool. Wool products, natural fleeces, and quilts will be on display.

For children only, there will be a craft program, "corn cob sheep," and a chance to help the shepherd by turning the crank of the 100-year-old "automatic" clippers used to shear the farm's flock of Suffolk sheep. There is a one dollar materials' fee for the craft program. Admission and parking are free, and refreshments will be available.

Howell Farm is located on Valley Road, one mile east of the Belle Mountain Ski Area, in Hopewell Township. Rain date is Sunday. For further information, call 397-0449 or 737-3299.

Sunday Walking Tours With Historical Society

The Historical Society is offering its Sunday walking tours of historic Princeton on a continuing basis, weather permitting.

An experienced guide from the Society's volunteer staff will acquaint newcomers, visitors and residents with the events and buildings that shaped the Princeton of today on a tour that encompasses Nassau, Mercer, Edgehill and Stockton streets.

The tours begin at 2, except for May 22, at 2:30, at Bainbridge House, 158 Nassau Street, and last approximately two hours. The cost is $3 per person, and the proceeds support the educational programs of the Historical Society. Reservations are not required.

New guides are always welcome, and anyone interested in becoming a volunteer walking tour leader is encouraged to contact Nancy Clark at the Society, 921-6748.

Ray Bowers Is Honored With YM Service Award

The YMCA will honor Raymond A. Bowers, chairman of Lewis C. Bowers and Sons, Inc., with the annual Francis G. Clark Award.

The award is given to an outstanding Princeton resident for exceptional community contributions as well as service to the YMCA. It will be presented at the annual dinner Sunday, May 22, at the Nassau Inn. The dinner will begin at 6.

Mr. Bowers, whose firm is a major architectural and construction company, was president of the YMCA board of directors during the 1950's when the fund-raising and construction of the present YM-YWCA facility was carried out. In addition, he served on the YM-YWCA board of trustees.

As a youth, Mr. Bowers served as a Y leader in high school. At Penn State he was president of the student YMCA. After graduate studies at Princeton University, he worked as a YMCA director before entering the firm founded by his father.

Mr. Bowers was chairman of the Middle Atlantic YMCA Youth and Government Program, and he has served on state and national YMCA boards. He has also been involved with the National Council of YMCA's and with youth camps.

Mr. Bowers was one of 11 individuals named 1988 Outstanding Engineering Alumnus by the College of Engineering at Penn State, where he earned his undergraduate degree. In 1980, he was named Man of the Year by the Princeton area Chamber of Commerce.

Breast Cancer Detection Object of Special Day

On Saturday, May 14, women can arrange for low-cost or, where required, no-cost mammograms at any of 91 participating hospitals and other health care facilities throughout New Jersey.

An annual event to promote early detection of breast cancer, the Breast Cancer Detection Awareness Program (BCDAP) is sponsored by the American Cancer Society in conjunction with participating institutions and WCBS-TV.

Women who register will receive, free of charge, instruction in the proper technique of breast self-examination and a breast exam by a medical professional. They will be able to schedule a reduced-cost mammogram at a time of their convenience.

The typical cost for a mammogram is $125 to $200, not covered under medical insurance plans. On May 14, women can schedule mammograms for only $40. Those who cannot afford this charge may be eligible for mammograms at no cost.

BCDAP is open to all women age 35 and older who have never had a mammogram, who have no symptoms of cancer, and who are neither pregnant nor breast feeding. Mammography is a safe, simple X-ray procedure recognized as the most reliable means for early detection of breast cancer — sometimes, two or more years before cancer can be discovered by any physical examination.

During 1988, it is estimated that 135,000 women in the United States will develop breast cancer, and that 42,000 women in this country will lose their lives to the disease. The overwhelming majority of these women could have been saved through early detection.

For information on how to register for the Breast Cancer Detection Awareness program the American Cancer Society at 394-5000.

Volunteers Are Sought For Special Olympics

The Mercer County Special Olympics will be held Saturday from 8:30 to 4 at Palmer Stadium. The rain date is Sunday, May 8.

These Special Olympics track and field events on the County level are not to be confused with the bigger New Jersey Special Olympics Summer Games which will be held at the end of June, also at Palmer Stadium and nearby fields. Some 350 athletes ranging in age from 3 to 50 will compete in the Mercer County event, which the public is encouraged to attend.

The Princeton University Student Volunteers Council will again be in charge of the logistics associated with the County event. They are responsible for registration, entertainment, volunteer recruitment, publicity and fundraising.

All Special Olympians have mental or developmental handicaps and some have physical handicaps as well. Some will compete with crutches, walkers and wheelchairs.

Events will include a 50-meter dash, softball throw, standing broad jump, 100-meter dash, 100-meter walk, 200-meter dash, running long jump, relay races, shotput, a tennis ball throw and a 25-meter dash for those under age 8. Ribbons will be awarded to all participants, and athletes who do especially well in this event will advance to the State meet, to be held at the University in June.

There will be opening and closing ceremonies, featuring a torch run and accompanied by the Princeton University band. Throughout the day there will be sports demonstrations by University teams, and entertainment will be provided by Princeton singing groups, dance troupes and the mime company.

Caught in the Middle

The YWCA, in cooperation with Corner House, is sponsoring a new series, "Caught in the Middle: Parenting Teenagers and Parents." The four-part series will be held on Fridays, May 6 to May 27, from noon to 1 p.m. at Bramwell House, adjacent to the YWCA.

Linda Meisel, executive director of Corner House, will lead the discussion and is herself "caught in the middle." The focus will be on the special problems of the woman as caregiver and her role with parents and children, including the issues of guilt, assertiveness, and developing support systems.

The fee for the series is $16 for YWCA members and $18 for nonmembers. For more information, call Marga Dillow, 497-2124.

Last year, more than 800 volunteers, most of whom were students, helped out on the day of the event. They acted as sports officials, food handlers, general workers and huggers. Each hugger adopted an athlete for the day and acted as a chaperone, companion and cheerleader.

For additional information, call Maria Dathe at 734-7908, Liz Wechsler at 734-7525, or Nikki Berson at 734-7678.

Princeton Archaeologists Honored by Lecture

Prof. Emily T. Vermeule of Harvard University and the Boston Museum of Fine Arts will give the inaugural Homer A. and Dorothy B. Thompson Lecture this Thursday at the Institute for Advanced Study.

The event is co-sponsored by the Archaeological Institute of America and its Princeton Society; by the Institute for Advanced Study; and by Princeton University's programs in art and archaeology and in the history, archaeology and religions of the ancient world. Dr. Vermeule's title, "Homeric and Dorotheic Athens," honors the Thompsons' long and distinguished association with the excavations of the Athenian Agora, conducted under the auspices of the American School of Classical Studies in Athens.

Homer Thompson is now an emeritus professor of the Institute for Advanced Study, and both he and his wife Dorothy have been awarded the Gold Medal of the Archaeological Institute of America. This new endowed lecture of the Archaeological Institute has been established from the donations of admirers, friends and students of the Thompsons, under the leadership of the Princeton Society of the AIA and its current president, Prof. Maria Teresa Moevs of Rutgers University.

After this year, there will be an annual lecture sponsored by the Princeton Society, to be given once in Princeton and once at another local society of the AIA. The lectureship thus aims to honor the achievement of the Thompsons, provide an additional lecturer for the Prince-library expansion. Ms. Thresher says she hopes for a multi-faceted approach to the expansion that dovetails with community needs.

"What often happens is, a community will hire one specific consultant who prescribes a building program; then an architect comes in and designs it and it is built," Ms. Thresher remarks. "A theory of what a good library should be is thus imposed on the community without really looking at the community.

"Princeton is very special. I don't particularly want us to have a standard, modular thing imposed on us. So we are thinking how to structure a focus group of experts — who should they be, what data should we give them, who should they interview, what questions should we ask them. That way I think we will get a more free-flowing discussion, more creativity and more relevancy to this particular community."

Ms Thresher says a key question is "How much space do we need, and is that space available on this site? My hunch is, if we do expand on this site, it may be the last expansion. We have to think about what library services need to be now, and what they will be 25 years from now, and what should the building look like to accommodate those needs.

Parking Problems. "Along with the question of how much space is there here, is the question, how does that relate to the parking problem? Some solutions for giving us more space would be getting rid of parking. The library has to proceed down two paths at least, and keep both options open. One is to move, one is to stay, and the library has to make alternate plans to both."

Ms. Thresher says the Princeton Public Library is somewhat unusual in that its use patterns are more in keeping with those of an urban library than they are of a suburban library. Suburban libraries, she says, are usually empty during the day and busy at night. The urban pattern is to have peak use in the middle of the day and during after-school hours.

Princeton's library is busy at night, but has a greater peak during the day. Moreover, many people walk to the library, which is also a typical urban pattern. In the recent survey, one third of the adult users said they had walked to the library that day; 65 percent drove. The availability of parking at night has not drawn people, at least not overwhelmingly, Ms. Thresher says.

"If we move someplace only because it is easier to park, would all the people who now use us continue to use us? Or would we serve people less well because they wouldn't go with us? This is a major thing to be looked at."

'Quiet at Night.' She says it is her hunch, after six months living in the town, that Princeton is a community that "doesn't do a lot at night — is sort of quiet. You have to go with the culture of the community," she notes. "You can't change the culture just because the institution has certain needs. Also, what about senior citizens? And the Witherspoon community? Who would we serve better (if we move)?"

A general rule in library service, Ms. Thresher says, is to keep everything at one level, because of supervision problems. The more levels, or floors, the larger the staff that is needed. A third floor was anticipated when Princeton Public Library was built in 1966. Ms. Thresher says if the skylight is kept ("Everyone is very tied to and committed to the skylight," she notes) the library would not net much space.

Jacquelyn Tresher

"This Commmunity needs and wants a library that is much more sophisticated than a community this size normally has."

"It seems, to get the space we need, we have to go up and out. There is only one direction out, and that is into the parking lot. And that probably entails a parking garage." Ms. Thresher says she is very aware of the "trauma" of the whole issue of a municipal parking garage.

Parking Garage Inevitable. "My feeling is the community is going to have to come to terms with a parking garage somewhere. The merchants are pushing for it, and I think it is going to have to happen. It would be nice if it is mutually advantageous to the merchants and the library."

Ms. Thresher suggests that a parking garage "can be fairly pleasant to look at" and that the appearance of three blocks of parked cars is not itself aesthetically attractive. The real objection to a parking garage, she thinks, may lie with those who want to maintain "a certain character" in the downtown area. However, her main concern is that the library's future plans not be contingent on one particular solution to either the parking or the expansion, "because that would hurt the library."

"We're trying to leave ourselves different kinds of options. It requires more complex planning, but we have to plan several things simultaneously and try to keep in the same time flow our needs, plus the Borough's needs. There's a lot of emotional feeling about staying in the Borough, the town center," she adds.

Having herself chosen Princeton partly because it has a town center, Ms. Thresher understands the feeling. "If you put public buildings into shopping centers to get the parking, you are giving up on the fact that you want a town with a downtown area, and you are contributing to the very thing that everyone does not want," she remarks. Moreover, one of the facts that the adult user survey underscores is how much the Princeton Public Library is used as a business information center

Chance Beginning. Ms. Thresher speaks with the rapidity of a race-track announcer and probably thinks just as fast. She also laughs easily. She is wholly committed to public libraries, and serves as president of the division of the Public Library Association which focuses on public libraries as a source of community information. And yet she entered the profession almost by chance.

She was a sophomore at Florida State University, thinking of a career in teaching, when she saw an ad in the campus newspaper about an internship in the state library system.

The internship paid well and offered wide experience in every facet of library work. She was one of 30 accepted out of the 500 who applied, and was assigned to the St. Petersburg library system.

Not only was it her first library job, it was her first experience living in her own apartment, and at age 19 it was a heady time. As an intern, she worked at the downtown branch serving only senior citizens, a branch in a shopping center which had only a book checkout, the reference desk, and the children's program planning department, in fact, in every department of the system.

Although the experience was a positive one, it wasn't until after graduation — and discovering that her first job in publishing involved writing more ad copy than doing the editorial work she expected — did she consider going to library school. Ms. Thresher had majored in English and humanities and spent her junior year in Florence, Italy, enthusiastically pursuing art history. Like many humanities majors, she wanted a job in her field, but was hampered because she couldn't pass a typing test.

Move to New Jersey. Her parents vetoed Columbia University's library school, Ms. Thresher's first choice, because they did not want their daughter living in New York City. She next chose Rutgers, because of its proximity to New York, she says, and while there worked at the Douglass College Library.

After receiving her degree, she began as the young adult librarian in the Woodbridge Free Public Library, moving up to branch head and then to projects coordinator, designing surveys and evaluating projects. She became particularly knowledgeable about adult independent learning centers, a popular component of library service at the time, and this in turn led to a job as adult services consultant in the Westchester County Library System.

The 38 libraries serving 867,000 people in Westchester County are linked into a single system in which the various areas are headed by consultants. From adult services Ms. Thresher moved to special services consultant, involved in writing grant proposals. Her resume states that she has written more than 50 successful state, federal and foundation proposals totalling $6.5 million.

After serving as assistant director of the Westchester Library System for five years, Ms. Thresher realized she was developing a "wish list" of things she would like to implement in a public library, but which, from a position of middle management, were not hers to change. "I was looking for a community that supported libraries, that wanted creativity and change, and I was looking nationally," she says of her move to Princeton.

By coincidence, her former boss at Woodbridge Free Public Library, Edwin Beckerman, a Princeton resident, was also the volunteer consultant to the Princeton Public Library in its search for a new director. And although Ms. Thresher had her sights set on California, and had ruled out New Jersey, she recognized that Princeton might be different, and she agreed to come for the interview.

She says she was very impressed by the selection process and sensed that Princeton was on the verge of wanting to do many things. "It has been everything I anticipated — just more of it," she laughs, "It has been an exercise in self control in terms of deciding what to do first — and how to take advantage of things as they come along, as well as plan for the future."

Cooperative Approach. Ms. Thresher believes in a cooperative, collaborative approach with the governing bodies to obtain the resources the library needs. She sees her role as making the best possible case for the library and then letting the town fathers and mothers decide how best to allocate the tax dollar. She also believes that private support could be developed further — particularly when it comes to capital needs and growth.

"This community needs and wants a library that is much more sophisticated than a community this size normally has," Ms. Thresher says. "That also means it has to put more resources into it. In many ways, people know this is a special community, and they take a great deal of pride in it. But they will have to put resources behind what they want. Knowing the community is special is not enough."

OBITUARIES

Mortimer Feldman, 79, of Kendall Park, died May 2 at Princeton Medical Center.

Born in Kingston, Mr. Feldman was a lifelong resident of the Princeton area. He graduated from Princeton High School, attended the Hun School as a post graduate student and received his B.S. degree from Princeton University in 1929. For more than 40 years he owned and operated a retail egg business in Princeton.

For the last 15 years he had been active in real estate sales in both the Princeton and New Brunswick areas. Mr. Feldman was a U.S. Army veteran of World War II and an avid follower of Princeton University athletic teams.

Husband of the late Harriet D. Feldman, he is survived by a daughter and son-in-law, Joanne S. Feldman and Andrew R. Tartler of Bethesda, Md.; a son and daughter-in-law, Steven J. and Nancy Feldman of Cranbury; a brother, Mathias Feldman of Haddonfield; and three grandchildren.

The service was scheduled to be held this Wednesday at 11 at the Jewish Center, Rabbi Melvin J. Glazer officiating. Burial will be in Beth Israel Cemetery, Woodbridge. Arrangements were under direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

Memorial contributions may be made to either Kendall Park First Aid and Rescue Squad, Kendall Park 08824, or to the Athletic Department at Princeton University, Princeton 08544.

Helen Grover Luginbuhl, 83, died April 30 at home. Born in Princeton, she was a lifelong resident.

Daughter of the late George and Mary Grover, and wife of the late Ernest W. Luginbuhl, who died in 1981, she is survived by a daughter, Mary-Louise Kearns of Princeton; two grandchildren, Anthony and Alexandra L. Zega, both of Princeton; and two nephews, Gary and Jeff Grover, both of Princeton.

The funeral was scheduled to be held this Wednesday at 12:30 from the Mather-Hodge Funeral Home, 40 Vandeventer Avenue, with a Mass of Christian Burial at 1:30 at St. Paul's Church. Burial will be private. Memorial contributions may be made to the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, Department of Neurology, c/o Dr. Donald Silberberg, 34th Street at Spruce Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Robert H. Arlett, 53, died April 27 at Princeton Medical Center after a brief illness.

Born in New Brunswick, Mr. Arlett lived there for many years before moving to Princeton 15 years ago. He was employed by the Equitable Life Insurance company of Edison as an assistant agency manager.

He graduated in 1956 with a bachelor of science degree from Rutgers University School of Engineering, received a master's degree in 1959 and his Ph.D. in 1967. He was a member of Chi Phi fraternity and was elected to the American Men of Science in 1969 for his research in ceramics.

Surviving are his wife, Yolanne Grund Arlett; his father W. B. Arlett of Fort Lauderdale; a son, Brad Arlett of Princeton; a daughter, Alexis Arlett Gould of Millburn; and a brother, Richard of Los Angeles.

The service was held at the First Reformed Church in South River, the Rev. Emil Varga, pastor emeritus, officiating. Memorial contributions may be made to the Medical Center at Princeton Foundation, Radiation Oncology Department, 253 Witherspoon Street, Princeton 08540.

Bulletin Notes

The Rainbow Express, a musical about Noah and his ark, will be presented by the Hopewell Presbyterian Church on Friday, May 13, at 7:30 and on Sunday, May 15, at 4 p.m. This musical by John and Phyllis Miller is a serious-fun story about God's promise to Noah and how that promise — made so long ago — is important to us today. The story is told by a choir of angels who have a unique perspective on the whole matter.

The part of Noah will be played by Bruce Bedient, and his Conscience will be played by Curt Wilbur. The animals of the ark will be drawn from the church's nursery school and kindergarten classes, and other players and the angel choir will be composed of church members of all ages. The musical is under the direction of David Hutchings, minister of music.

Admission is free and the public is invited to attend. For further information, call the church office at 466-0758 between 9:30 and 1:30.

THE GOLDEN EGG ON ROLLING HILL!

No play on words, but the name and location, of this extraordinary contemporary, Oriental in design, expertly executed, peaceful as a result! Built in 1972, young enough to be modern, and just old enough to have withstood the test of time, this extraordinary plan for our area captures the mood of another world and offers a restful oasis from daily living. All the windows open to the woods behind which form the artistic background for this open floor plan. A deck around half the house is actually another living room! For discerning people who appreciate nature and the opportunity it offers. $550,000

Morven Place

Morven Place — one of Princeton's most beautiful western streets and the site of this stately Colonial. One of Princeton's fine older houses, modern conveniences have been added and the entire house refurbished — carefully and lovingly preserving the traditional architecture. A circular drive, bordered by boxwood, leads to the portico, enhanced by tall columns. A handsome door opens to the center hall and a view of the elegant interior. The huge step-down living room is magnificent and the other rooms comparable. $1,500,000

An Opera Based on the Legend of Persephone Is Staged by Children at Princeton Montessori

Imagine a children's opera re-telling the legend of Persephone — not an opera for children but an opera cast almost entirely with children.

In Greek mythology, Persephone is the daughter of Zeus and Demeter, the Goddess of Agriculture. With the complicity of Zeus she is abducted by his brother Hades, God of the Underworld, to be his wife and reign with him in the Underworld. In her grief over the loss of her daughter, Demeter neglects to tend the growing things in her charge.

Gods and mortals alike protest the loss of crops. Zeus orders Hades to restore Persephone to her mother. But Persephone has broken the fast she said she would maintain in the underworld by swallowing a pomegranate seed, thereby tying her to the underworld forever. A compromise is arrived at whereby Persephone spends half the year in the underworld (fall and winter) and the other half above (spring and summer).

PART OF THE CAST: Posing before going on stage in "Persephone" last Friday were, top row, from left, Earl Potts as Poseidon, Janet Davis as Demeter, and Caroline Perkins as Persephone. In front are Jason Abellana as Helios and Ilene Goldstein as Iris. Ilene was cited after the performance by Sanford Jones, the composer/director, for her "deportment" during the week of rehearsals.

Imagine the character and costume possibilities for this tale of how the seasons were created — the gods and goddesses on Mt. Olympus, the flora and fauna of the natural world. Imagine the scenery, from the splendor of Mt. Olympus to the mysterious River Styx, entrance to the Underworld.

One Week's Time. Now imagine that this story is acted out in true operatic fashion in solos, duets and choruses by a company of 43 children and three adults. The children are the junior class at the Princeton Montessori School. They range in age from 6 to 12, and among them are children of differing races, national origins, physical and mental abilities and even physical and mental handicaps.

The truly astonishing fact, however, is that this production was mounted in a single week. It was put on before an appreciative audience of parents and friends last Friday evening at Princeton High School — just five school days after the arrival of composer/director Sanford Jones in their midst the previous Monday.

Mr. Jones attended Westminster Choir College and taught there as a member of the piano faculty. A student of Frances Clark, he also taught at her New School for Music Study. Becoming interested in the Montessori teaching methods, he was trained in this country and in Italy as a Montessori teacher and was the co-founder of Montessori schools in Washington, D.C. and New York City.

He currently teaches music at the Charles Towne Montessori School in Charleston, S.C. He has composed six operas for children which he directs at Montessori schools around the country. Mounting Persephone in cooperation with the faculty, parents and children of the two junior classes (grades one through four) was his second annual "residency" at the Princeton Montessori School, following last year's Harlequin.

Complex Work. Because Persephone is much more complex, some preliminary work in casting, set design and costume production began a week or so before Mr. Jones arrived. However, the entire rehearsal schedule took place in the single week. There were the major chorus numbers to be memorized and practiced, and just about every child had a small speaking part as well as a solo to sing.

According to Marsha Stencel, director of the Princeton Montessori School, doing it all in one week, although arduous for the adults involved, keeps the enthusiasm high among the youngsters and prevents "burn-out" before the opera is actually put on.

Mr. Jones's wife, the former owner of dance studios in Montclair, was the choreographer. Persephone has five acts, beginning with Mt. Olympus and moving to the Underworld, and each had its own backdrop. Evelyn Kalpin, a junior class teacher, was the production coordinator, set designer and

"WE'RE BAAAD" sing these ten little sheep to shepherd Mike Tomberg in the finale to this year's Triangle Club revue, "Aint' Mythbehavin'."

"Ain't Mythbehavin'," the 1988 Triangle Club Revue Boasts One of the Cleverest Concepts in Many Years

How could anyone except the worst jokesters, in all good conscience, pan a college revue based on Greek mythology, even when all the skits in the show don't pan out?

Now that I've got that pun out of my system, I can proceed to assure you that the Princeton University Triangle Club's 1988 production, Aint' Mythbehavin,' boasts one of the cleverest and most promising concepts propelling this annual musical extravaganza in years — a contemporary interpretation of Greek and Roman mythology. Who else besides undergraduates are fresh enough on their Clytemnestra and Eurydice to pull this off? (There's an amusing guide to the gods in the program for those who aren't.) The theme has just enough of the academic to show off intellects, and provides just enough of a framework for the Club's traditional satire of more current subjects — which runs the gamut from the Olympics to Oprah Winfrey.

As usual, television (as well as Harvard and Yale) provides an easy target for the undergraduate humor. In "The Fating Game," Paris must choose between Hera, a tough jock, Aphrodite, a simpering idiot, and a butch Athena, who holds a degree in feminist military literature from Radcliffe. In "Oprah," Kimberly Ballou impersonates the talk show hostess as she questions three Greek wives on their relationships with their husbands: Penelope, who after 20 years is still hopeful of Odysseus' return; Clytemnestra, a rabid woman if ever there was one; and a quite loony Cassandra.

Impersonations abound. There's Howard Cosell, a private eye, a rock star (well done by John Moore), and of course Ronald Reagan, whose portrayal by Terry Theologides has become something of a signature piece and a new tradition these past four years (It's fortunate that Reagan's term ends soon after Theologides graduates this spring.)

The "Artsy" Numbers. There are always at least a few serious numbers in a Triangle show, often attempting to be "artsy," and Ain't Mythbehavin' delivers the expected here, too. These numbers can provide a welcome change of pace if they're good, as were Cindy Horowitz's sultry solo, "Helen's Back in Town," and "Tapestry of Fate," performed by three singers and three dancers. But Medusa's scarf dance in the first act simply broke the momentum of the show and came across as an attempt by choreographer Terry Rieser to maximize the use of her dancers — though unfortunately not to maximum effect.

For a change of pace, I'll go with the three "Living Statues" improvisations. Hilariously pompous and totally deadpan, Steve Davis and Penelope Mihalap glide across the stage in green and configure their bodies to express "Rage," "Togetherness," "Birth" and other profound situations brilliantly announced by Wyck Godfrey. The only problem here was that "the Letter E" was such a laugh that anything after it had to be anticlimactic; it would be better switched to the end.

The two most successful skits in the show succeeded in large part because they worked on several levels simultaneously. In "Baaa," Shepherd Mike Tomberg falls asleep and dreams of sheep, of course. The sheep congregate to form Triangle's traditional all-male drag kickline. Attired in long black gloves as well as scanty woolly bathing suits, they sing "We're baaad," while doing some pretty funny imitations of Michael Jackson.

"Trial by Comedy," a sketch by five undergraduates, culls its jury from the audience in McCarter Theatre. The challenge: if each of the three defendants can get two jurors to laugh, he will save his skin. The laughing juror gets dismissed from the case and sent back to his seat. The defendants' jokes are pathetic, laughably so, but we had some mighty straightfaced jurors the night I saw the show. The rub made for high comedy.

A Group Effort. As usual, there are no real stars in Triangle — it is an ensemble production involving some three dozen performers, 19 writers, and dozens of musicians and technical production people. The director who pulled all this together, Scott Harris, is a professional, as is set designer Dick Block, who is responsible for the witty columns, agonized Atlas and caryatids and whimsical gods peering down on all the antics below. (I particularly liked the backdrop spoofing the Olympics' commercialism: Olympian Express, Celestial Seasonings and Crazy Oedie — Prices a Mother Could Love.)

My final words on Ain't Mythbehavin'? Although there are some very good moments, the show seemed a little thin to me, despite the rich material it had to draw on. There were too many indifferent numbers that felt like half-baked fillers, such as the ode to baklava. And there were too many missed opportunities.

More could have been made of the Fats Waller allusion, more of Oedipus, Phaedra — and, oh, how could they pass over Mike Dukakis and his cousin Olympia in favor of those already dated jibes about a shrub and a pineapple? There's still time for all those writers to make some changes before Ain't Mythbehavin' returns to McCarter Theatre June 3 and 4. Princeton undergraduates are used to deadlines.

Are You Cinderella?

A motion picture talent hunt is under way as Trans World Entertainment searches for a Cinderella to star in its production of Cinderello Rock. Princeton MarketFair has been selected to represent the greater New York market, and will hold a search contest Saturday, May 14. The application deadline is this Saturday.

The contest is open to professional and amateur actresses, singers and dancers between the ages of 17 and 22. Winners of contests in 20 metropolitan areas will be chosen by panels of casting directors, producers and locally-selected celebrities on the basis of personality, talent and appearance.

Winners from these areas will be flown to Hollywood for screen tests and interviews with the filmmakers. The casting of Cinderella, chosen from the thousands of prospective entrants, will be announced in late June.

Set in Los Angeles' San Fernando Valley, Cinderella Rock is a contemporary comedy that will feature original rock music to be produced by a rock group that is yet to be selected. The screenplay for the movie was written by Richard O'Brian and C.J. Cox. O'Brian's credits include The Rocky Horror Picture Show.

Applications for the Search for Cinderella can be picked up at the Princeton MarketFair management office Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 6. Completed applications and a black and white photo must be submitted to the office no later than Saturday. For more information call 452-7777.

'McCarter Night' Planned For New York Debut

McCarter Theatre is chartering a bus for those who wish to attend a performance on Wednesday, May 18, of Three Ways Home in New York City.

The Casey Kurtti play about the interaction between a white volunteer social worker and a savvy black mother and her troubled teenage son was performed at McCarter last January. The successful Stage II production followed a staged reading as part of the Playwrights at McCarter series. Three Ways Home is now moving Off Broadway to the Astor Place Theatre in New York City.

The production will continue under the direction of Chris Silva. S. Epatha Merkerson will recreate her role as the mother. The cast also features Malcolm-Jamal Warner and Mary McDonnell. Members of the community are invited to join the McCarter staff, associates and trustees for "McCarter Night" May 18.

Tickets are $23, including bus transportation. The bus will depart from the Princeton Shopping Center at 5:45 p.m. For reservations and information call Dan Bauer, publicity manager, at 683-9100.

Lecture on Fugard Play Set for Monday Night

Athol Fugard's "Master Harold"...ond the boys opens Friday, May 13, at McCarter Theatre.

McCarter Artistic Director Nagle Jackson, who is directing the play, will give a lecture about the play and Mr. Fugard Monday at 8 at the theater. The play is an autobiographical work, based on a petulant childhood act that continues to haunt the writer to this day.

Sam Semela worked for Mr. Fugard's family for 15 years — first at Mrs. Fugard's boarding house and then as a waiter in the tea room at St. George's Parks. An accomplished ballroom dancer, Mr. Semela was, as Mr. Fugard recalls, "the most significant — the only — friend of my boyhood years."

On slow days, when there were few customers to wait on, the two would sit and discuss whatever Athol Fugard had learned in school that day. Mr. Semela frequently borrowed his friend's books to take home and read. When Mr. Fugard was about 13 he and Mr. Semela had an argument. The incident is recaptured in "Master Harold..." in a shattering moment that gives the audience an insight into secret and insidious prejudices.

Mr. Fugard wrote the play at a time when South Africa's policies of apartheid were becoming more and more extreme. The theme of a young white boy forced to choose between brotherhood or isolation as "master" reflects the very choices the South African government was confronting.

Preview performances are Wednesday and Thursday, May 11 and 12, at 8. The show runs through May 29. Ticket prices range from $17 to $25. The McCarter Theatre box office phone number is 683-8000.

'Fatal Attraction' Due: The Play, Not the Movie

Fatal Attraction, the thriller by Bernard Slade, will open Friday, May 13, at the Off-Broadstreet Dessert Theatre in Hopewell for a run of five weekends.

Not to be confused with the movie of the same title, Fatal Attraction is a suspenseful murder mystery written by the author of Same Time Next Year. The show was first produced in London in 1985.

Blair Griffin, played by Jill Slagada, is a fragile-looking star personality who finds herself fading from the spotlight. When her husband, Morgan Richards, played by Bob Gargiullo, enters the scene, a macabre chain of events begins to build, link by link. Lieutenant Gus Braden, played by Ed Mahler, and Sergeant Doris Aylesworth, played by Diane Gilch, are called upon to decipher the mysterious misfortunes surrounding Blair.

Also in the cast are Sharon Alexander, who plays Blair's agent, and Mark W. Moede, as the photographer who has followed Blair's career for years. Rob Pherson is directing.

Performances are Friday and Saturday evenings at 8, with dessert available at 7, and Sunday matinees at 2:30, with dessert at 1:30. Tickets are $13.75 for Friday and Sunday shows and $15 for Saturday performances. A senior citizen discount is available for Sunday matinees.

For reservations call the box office at 466-2766. The theater is at 5 South Greenwood Avenue, Hopewell.

Shakespeare Auditions

Audition dates have been set for the 1988 session of "Shakespeare Summer," McCarter Theatre's four-week theatre program for teenagers which culminates in a fully staged production of a Shakespeare play. This summer's production will be The Merchant of Venice, directed by Robert Lanchester, associate artistic director of McCarter.

Joining Mr. Lanchester in providing instruction will be Steve Kazakoff, movement coach; Laurie Huntsman, acting coach; and Nagle Jackson, artistic director of McCarter, who will lead special acting classes.

Shakespeare Summer will run from June 24 to July 24. Classes and rehearsals will be held from 9 to 1, Monday through Friday, with performances of The Merchant of Venice outdoors on the Princeton campus on July 23 and 24.

Auditions for teenagers ages 14 to 18 are scheduled for Tuesday, May 10, and Thursday, May 12. Aspiring performers should call Sandy Moskovitz at 683-9100, extension 6021, between 9:30 and 5.

'Promises, Promises' Is Promised by PJ&B

PJ&B — the initials stand for Princeton Junction and Back — offers amateur actors, dancers and musicians an opportunity to work with professionals to produce an annual musical. It's an opportunity for closet performers who make their living through other careers to shed their 9 to 5 uniforms and suits, and drop their briefcases and software. They'll kick up their heels, sing their hearts out, and experience the exhilaration of performing in a professional theatre.

This year, PJ&B will produce Promises, Promises. The story is based upon the screenplay by Billy Wilder and I.A.L. Diamond for the film The Apartment. The hero is not a nice man. In fact, he is a kind of mousefink, who decides to sleep his way to the top in business without really lying.

The sleeping is done — in a manner of speaking — not by him but by the senior executives in the life insurance firm in which he works. He gives them the key to his apartment, and they give him the key to the executive washroom. They find a haven for their girls, and he finds a haven for his aspirations.

The production is under the stage and musical direction of Milton Lyon. Mr. Lyon is the founder of the McCarter Theatre Center for the Performing Arts, its first executive producer, and its first artistic director.

Performances are Thursday and Friday, June 16 and 17, at 8; and Saturday, June 18, at 2 and 8 p.m. Ticket prices are $12, $14, and $19. Call the McCarter box office at 683-8000.

Jean Shepard Tickets

Radio humorist Jean Shepard will make his 23rd annual performance in Princeton Saturday, June 4, at 8:30 in Richardson Auditorium. The performance is sponsored by Princeton University radio station WPRB.

Tickets are $7.50 each and are available by mail order only. They may be ordered by writing to WPRB, Attention Shep, Box 342, Princeton 08542.

'Child's Play' to Stage Stories by Young Writers

Child's Play, a theater company that performs stories and poems written by children, is coming to McCarter Theater on May 14.

Each year, the ensemble of four adults reads more than 30,000 pieces of literature written by children from kindergarten through eighth grade, choosing hundreds for "world premiere" performance as original plays, songs and dances. Their performance here will include selections from the company's vast repertory.

Child's Play began in 1978 at Parkland College in Champaign, Ill., when Victor Podagrosi, founder and artistic director of Child's Play Touring Theatre, was asked to create a special performance of stories and poems written by local children for a young author's awards ceremony. Mr. Podagrosi chose works by five young writers and mounted a 25-minute production using students from his acting classes.

Surprised by the sophistication and storytelling ability he discovered in the children's writings, and delighted by the enthusiasm of the parents and teachers who requested performances at their schools, Mr. Podagrosi and his wife, June, formed Child's Play the following year.

Child's Play Touring Theatre will be at McCarter Theatre on Saturday, May 14, at 1 p.m. Tickets are $7, and the phone number of the McCarter box office is 683-8000.

Experimental Production For a Shakespeare Play

Princeton University's Program in Theater and Dance will end its 1987-88 season with an experimental workshop production based on Shakespeare's romance, Cymbeline. Adapted and directed by senior Paul Schiff Berman, the production, titled Cymbeline: Interplays, will open Thursday, May 12, at the Acting Studio, 185 Nassau Street. It will continue May 13-15 and again May 20 and 21, at 8 each night.

Cymbeline, one of Shakespeare's last plays, is a sprawling romance of love, intrigue and reconciliation. Its fairy tale plot follows the trials of two young lovers who, because of the efforts of a villain, come to distrust each other's affection. A wicked stepmother, an ineffectual king, and a foolish prince add to their troubles, but in the end they are reunited, wiser for their journey.

Cymbeline: Interplays uses Shakespeare's text as a point of departure for an analysis of the issues and emotions that form the heart of the play. Selected scenes will be presented, with each followed by one or more "interpretations," which will challenge the audience to consider the complexity and possibilities inherent in the text. All the scenes will be strung together by a storyteller, who will fill in missing plot pieces, and by an original music score by Robert Bourne, '86.

Tickets are $3. For reservations, call 452-3676, weekdays between 9 and 5.

This Year's Music Festival at Nassau Presbyterian Featured Workshop by Composer/Conductor John Rutter

One of the benefits (and difficulties) of participating in a church choir is the opportunity to sing through a great deal of choral repertoire, since a new piece must be learned every week. Rarely does a church vocal ensemble get the chance to explore in depth the music of a given composer, and much rarer still is the experience of meeting and working with that composer. Limited rehearsal time and budget prevent most churches from performing the occasional "special concert," and churches often feel that the expense of doing something more is not worth it.

Ken Kelley, Director of Music at Nassau Presbyterian Church, is trying to change this view of church music. Since 1983, Nassau Presbyterian has sponsored an annual weekend festival on the music of a single composer. The purpose of the festival, according to Mr. Kelley, was "to be able to offer to the public and to our own congregation, at a reasonable cost, a high-quality level of performance of the great music for the church." The first three festivals focused on the repertoire of J. S. Bach, and the next two were dedicated to Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart and Franz Joseph Haydn.

The festival has changed in scope since its inception, according to Mr. Kelley: "At the beginning, the problem was to widen the view of the normal lay person who doesn't deal with music all the time to accept this new and different idea. Now it's almost a matter of working out how to work all of our visions within what we can afford!" Mr. Kelley recognizes that the Festival has become important to Nassau Presbyterian because it offers the musicians the chance to perform music one "cannot do in services because the forces it takes and the rehearsal time needed make it impossible. The festival is something special, and our congregation comes together to help make it go." Planning begins a year in advance with two primary committees: one concentrating on fund-raising and the other on the music.

This year a new twist was added to the event. Composer/conductor John Rutter is currently one of the most popular composers of contemporary church repertoire. His music, tuneful in its melodic writing and catchy in its rhythms, is easily accessible to choirs of all levels, and works especially well for youth and teens for whom it is often difficult to find quality music based on acceptable English texts.

Mr. Rutter has written music of all genres, including choral works, orchestral and instrumental pieces, a piano concerto, two children's operas and arrangements of popular music, but he may be best known to church musicians for his work with Sir David Willcocks on compiling and editing the Oxford Carols for Choirs series, a mainstay of many church music Christmas repertoire sources.

The connection between Mr. Rutter and Nassau Presbyterian was forged long before this weekend's festival; Sue Ellen Page, director of choirs for children and youth, has had a long association with Mr. Rutter through her musical work with children. Mr. Kelley felt he wanted "people to be faced with Rutter's music" and that, by exploring the repertoire with the composer present, the "congregation could understand and grow in their view of what could happen in church."

This year's festival also included a workshop involving 45 musicians from as far away as Canada, who came to Princeton to learn from Mr. Rutter by reading through his music under his direction, and by observing his rehearsals with the 50-voice adult choir and the 110-voice combined children's and youth choir.

Some of the workshop participants travelled an enormous distance for a three-day workshop, and all were serious about their music. In observing the participants observing Mr. Rutter, one could sense minds filing away rehearsal tips to take back to their own ensembles, as pencils furiously scribbled nuances and subtleties only a composer could provide for his own works. Many of the participants were from small-town churches, where such an opportunity to work on demanding repertoire would not be possible.

On-the-Scene Editing. Mr. Rutter related well to the performers, even managing not to shudder when he asked the children in what style the violins were playing, and received the reply, "creepy." With reminders such as "Just do what the music says — that's all the composer ever asks," Mr. Rutter made a few changes ("This will make the music somewhat more playable — I was so young when I wrote this piece!"), adjusted his conducting to fit the needs of the ensembles and elicited comprehensive interpretations of the scores.

The rarity of this experience was not lost on the younger performers; one member of the youth choir turned during the rehearsal to the row behind her and said, to no one in particular, "This is really great!" The Festival culminated in a public performance by the choirs, accompanied by the Concerto Soloists Chamber Orchestra, of two pieces by Ralph Vaughan Williams, an orchestral suite by Peter Warlock, and John Rutters' Requiem.

Mr. Kelley finds the experience of total immersion in a single composer's works always educational, and the logistical difficulties of preparing performers for the actual composer was a new kind of musical study. "This is the first Festival I have not conducted," claimed Mr. Kelley, "and in doing this preparation, I tried to understand from the music what the composer intended, because the printed score is not always at all what the composer had in mind. Writing down music is very limiting, yet the mind is not limiting for the composer.

"Rutter's music looks and sounds quite simple, yet when you study it, it is quite complex. I admire the mind that can make the very complex things seem simple, understandable and challenging."

Music for Flute, Strings At ACLU Chapter Benefit

Chamber music for flute and strings will highlight the annual benefit for the American Civil Liberties Union, Mercer-Huntington Chapter. The concert will take place on Sunday, May 15, at 3 at the Unitarian Church and will be followed by a party with refreshments.

The musicians will be Jayn Rosenfeld, flute, Mary Rowell, violin, and Styra Avins, cello. The program will consist of music by Beethoven, Haydn and Mozart, as well as a violin solo, Maxwell's Demon No. 4 by Richard Einhorn and a flute solo, Fantasy, by Stephen Dembski.

Ms. Rosenfeld is first flute with the Chamber Orchestra of Princeton and the Trenton Symphony, and she performs with several new music groups in New York and nationally. Ms. Rowell, a Juilliard graduate, performs with String Fever, the Tango Project, the New York New Music Ensemble and the Rock Band, Silos.

Ms. Avins plays with the American Symphony Orchestra and Prism Orchestra and teaches and conducts the orchestra at the United Nations International School.

Proceeds from the event help support the work of the chapter office in Trenton, which dealt with more than 1,700 telephone contacts and numerous letters requesting help with civil liberties and civil rights problems during the past year.

Young String Players Ready Concert May 15

The String Preparatory Orchestra of the Greater Princeton Youth Orchestra will present its spring concert Sunday, May 15, at 3 in the Playhouse at Westminster Choir College.

John Enz will conduct, and Jessica Godfrey, concertmistress of the string preparatory orchestra, will be the soloist in the Violin Concerto in G Major by Johann Benda. Miss Godfrey is an eighth-grade student at the John Witherspoon Middle School and studies violin with Elisabeth Weiss-Wechsler.

The program will include the Holberg Suite by Edvard Grieg, the Capriol Suite for String Orchestra by Peter Warlock, and Hemis Dance by Theron Kirk.

The String Preparatory Orchestra has 68 student members from schools in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. The group welcomes qualified string players in grades three to nine to audition for next season. For information or an audition appointment, call Holly Clemans, manager, at 737-1866. High school instrumentalists may call 683-0777 for information about the Greater Princeton Youth Orchestra.

Jazz, Blues and Folk Benefit Concert Planned

Monica Nagle and Dream Peace will perform Friday, May 13, in Richardson Auditorium with other guitarists, songwriters and singers. Called "A Concert for Life," the event will be a benefit for United Cerebral Palsy, Alpha House of Camden, and the Dream Peace Foundation.

An East Windsor resident, Ms. Nagle is a guitarist and singer whose repertory of original songs contains jazz, blues, and folk tunes. She has performed throughout the area at eateries, clubs, college coffee houses and university settings. She will perform May 13 with Charlie Wight and Harry Warner in what she describes as a soulful blend of original jazz, blues and folk music.

There will be special guest performances by Greg Merkle, a new age instrumental guitarist; Marcus Dagan, a songwriter "who writes from the heart and sings the same way"; Jeffrey Folmer, an acoustic singer/songwriter guitarist; Lisa Cornelio, a Princeton University senior who is an aspiring singer/songwriter; Jim Hickey, a 12-string guitarist and vocalist; and P.J. Lorenz, a singer/songwriter of new age jazz.

The concert is sponsored by the Women's Center and the Student Volunteers Council of Princeton University. A video tape will be made of the performances and the edited tape will be sold. All proceeds will go to the Dream Peace Foundation, which Ms. Nagle established to support causes such as United Cerebral Palsy and Alpha House in Camden, a home for girls who are in trouble with the law. The foundation also supports the National Federation of Parents for Drug Free Youth (NFP), a fund for promoting art, music and writing education in the East Windsor schools, and a fund to aid the social justice committee of St. Anthony of Padua Catholic Church.

Tickets are $10 general admission and $8 with student ID. Ms. Nagle is seeking corporate and private donations to make the concert, with its guest performers, a financial success.

For information call her at 443-5164.

Auditions for "Voices"

Voices, an ensemble of professional soloists, will hold auditions for its 1988-1989 season Saturday and Monday. The 12-member ensemble presents 15 to 20 concerts annually, and there is a chorus available for choral-orchestral performances.

Auditioning singers will be asked to perform an aria by Bach or Handel, a 20th-century art song, a sight reading excerpt, and a prepared excerpt by Debussy. To schedule an audition call Nancy Plum at 452-3948 days, or (215) 321-0647 evenings.

Dinner and Opera Talk To Benefit June Opera

The June Opera Guild will hold a benefit event Saturday, May 22, at the Marriott Hotel grand ballroom.

Following cocktails and dinner, Harold Powers, professor of music at Princeton University, will give a talk on "Where Do Librettos Come From: The Play's The Thing," focusing on Verdi's Macbeth and its origins in the Shakespeare play. Prof. Powers has recently been awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship for his studies of Verdi.

The benefit will also serve to announce the June Opera Festival's fifth season, beginning Sunday evening, June 5, and continuing through June 28. Two operas will be presented this season, Mozart's Cosi fan tutte and Benjamin Britten's A Midsummer Night's Dream.

Soccer Field Renovated By Volunteer Efforts

With the warm breezes of springtime, hundreds of soccer-playing people descend on the University-owned soccer fields off Washington Road for practice and competition. The fields are not only used by the 50 youth teams of the Princeton Soccer Association, but also by men's and women's University club teams, eight YMCA adult teams, and a host of local teams that show up when the fields do not seem to be used. Over the years through constant use, large parts of the playing areas have been transformed into dust pits.

This spring, thanks to the volunteer efforts of Doerler Landscaping of Lawrenceville and the Stone Companies (developers of the Preserve in Princeton), field #3 has been regraded and reseeded. When the fence is taken down next year, we will have a new field on which we can once again enjoy playing soccer.

Competition for Program But Not with YM-YWCA

To the Editor of Town Topics:

We wish to commend Barbara Johnson for her excellent, thoroughly researched two-part series on the history of Family Service. At the same time, we wish to correct two inaccuracies at the end of the second part in the April 27th issue which were not related to this history.

The first statement refers to competition and mentions the Princeton YM-YWCA. We would like to clarify our perspective further. The Princeton YM provides physical fitness and wellness services to employee groups. Family Service provides emotional "fitness" to such groups in the form of educational workshops and employee assistance programs.

Employee assistance programs, or EAP's as they are known, provide diagnosis, short-term treatment and referral for personal family problems. Family Service and the Princeton YM thus complement each other in this regard. In addition, to our knowledge, the YW is not involved in services to employee groups at all. Competition with Family Service for EAP's exists, but with other organizations.

The second inaccuracy was the statement that the Family Service 90th Anniversary Dinner was held at the Hyatt. The 90th Anniversary Dinner took place at the Merrill Lynch Training Center in Plainsboro. We are extremely grateful to Merrill Lynch for sponsoring this major event.

We hope you will bring these two items to the attention of your readers in what otherwise was an extremely fine article, which we appreciate greatly.

Area Merchants Thanked For Supporting Cabaret

To the Editor of Town Topics:

We wish to thank TOWN TOPICS for their news coverage and the community for supporting our Cabaret '88, held at Stuart Country Day School on April 24. Many prizes were donated by area merchants, such as Hamilton Jewelers and Landau's in Princeton, Cohoes in Market Fair and Golden Triangle in Forrestal Village.

Also, Sue Stember Photography, of Lawrenceville, Dorothy Oppenheim Antiques in Kingston, Joseph's Hair Styling of Lawrenceville, The Village Silver of Princeton, Clayton's in Princeton, and Peppi's Hair Design from Rocky Hill.

In addition, Compri Hotels, Kingston Antiques, Parfums International Ltd., Benetton's of Palmer Square, the Hyatt Regency Hotel, Halo Farms of Trenton, Dannemann Fabries of Kendall Park, Kuller Travel Agency and Columbia Cheese Co. have all made generous contributions for this charity event.

The generous support of local merchants and businesses has enabled the Woman's Club of Princeton to continue their donations to many local charities in the Princeton area.

Are Princeton Potholes Actually Black Holes?

To the Editor, Town Topics:

During the Easter break, I had once again the pleasure of visiting your famous city. People are polite and friendly. But, I was terribly disappointed by the poor condition of the streets. Cracks, bumps and pot-holes abound. And there are no signs to forewarn motorists of these hazards.

Some improvements are surely required. Please don't tell us that you need to resuscitate Einstein to find a solution to that problem.

Music

There will also be an all-Gershwin evening featuring selections from Porgy and Bess, sung by festival soloists and Princeton Pro Musica. Christopher O'Riley will join members of the New Jersey Symphony, led by Michael Pratt, for Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue. The June Opera Festival will also perform an introduction to opera for children entitled The Ring of the Fettucines.

Performances will be held at the Kirby Arts Center at the Lawrenceville School. Pre-theater picnicking on the lawns is encouraged. For further information and tickets call 737-7722.

Mrs. David L. Frothingham and Mrs. William B. Hewson are co-chairman of the benefit dinner on May 22. For tickets, call 737-7722.

Correction

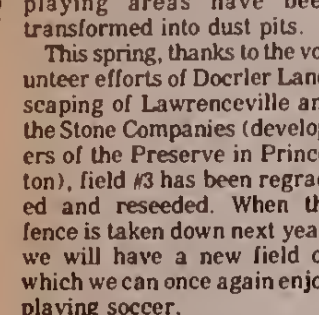
The final New Jersey Symphony Orchestra Chamber Concert at Richardson Auditorium is scheduled for Friday, May 20, at 8:30, not Saturday, May 15, as stated in last week's TOWN TOPICS.

A Cappella Singers Plan Spring Evening of Song

Mostly A Cappella will present "A Spring Evening of Song" on Sunday, May 22, at 7:30 in the fellowship hall of Hopewell Presbyterian Church.

The 11-voice choir will sing folk songs, spirituals and jazz as well as traditional a cappella literature, including works by Tchaikovsky, Carl Orff, Palestrina, Gustav Holst, Gershwin and PDQ Bach. Several New Jersey composers will also be featured, including Olga Gorelli of Pennington.

Refreshments will be served, and a goodwill offering will be collected for the church, which provides rehearsal facilities for the ensemble.



An understanding of God Truth, freed an Indiana woman from an infected lung, arthritis, and confinement to a wheelchair. It changed her whole life.

But this is not why she came to Christian Science in the first place. It was her hunger for an understanding of God.

If you are searching for the joyous freedom that comes from knowing God's presence in your life, come to our service this Wednesday evening. You will hear people like yourself testify to the power of God, Truth, in their own experience.

EXPRESSIVE LINE: Mitchell Siporin's 1942 study for the "John Brown" panel of his mural program for the St. Louis post office illustrates the social consciousness of many of the artists who worked on the New Deal art projects of the '30s. The ambitious mural projects sponsored by the federal government during the Depression are the subject of an exhibition at Squibb Gallery.

New Deal Era Murals Current Squibb Exhibit

"Painting America: Mural Art in the New Deal Era," the current exhibition at Squibb Gallery, encapsulates the cultural and social aspirations of the New Dea programs that put thousands of artists to work during the Great Depression. At no other time in this country's history has there been such a concerted effort to ceate a truly public art, accessible to every citizen, as there was in the ambitious mural projects sponsored by the four federal art programs of the 1930s.

While the WPA/FAP (Works Progress Administration/Federal Art Program) was the largest of these programs, the Section of Fine Arts, administered by the Treasury Department, also played an important role in commissioning murals for post offices, court houses and other public buildings in communities large and small, all across the country. Local officials and citizens' committees became involved in making decisions about the subject matter and style of the murals — abstract work was largely rejected, in favor of social realist or "American Scene" painting — and the resulting works represent a collaboration between the artists and the general public.

"Painting America," organized by Midtown Galleries in Manhattan, in association with Janet Marqusee Fine Arts, brings together 93 mural designs and studies by 44 artists. These are generally small-scale preparatory works, ranging from rough pencil sketches to more finished, detailed oil studies. While the artistic interest of the pieces varies, as a whole they provide a vivid reflection of the ambitions and scope of the New Deal mural projects.

Some of the artists represented in the show are familiar names — Thomas Hart Benton, Isabel Bishop, Clarence Carter, Rockwell Kent, Reginald Marsh and Ben Shahn among them — but many others are little-known regional artists. It is worthy of note that 20 percent of the artists are women.

Sense of Optimism. What links all of their works is a surprising sense of optimism, despite the harsh realities of the Depression. The industry of the American people, events from the nation's history, and the virtues of rural life and families are common themes. As Janet Marqusee has noted in her essay for the Midtown Galleries catalogue, which is excerpted in a smaller Squibb exhibition guide, "The murals portray a vital, energetic and constructive social environment .... Everyone is working ... and their labor is fruitful .... The lessons of the past are relevant and future growth seems possible."

In the murals featuring scenes of rural life, the fertility of the land and "democratic" spirit of the farmer are emphasized. Studies for post office murals by James Daugherty, Robert Lepper and Sarah Blakeslee show strong men and women working together in the fields, farmyard and orchards. Lepper's 1937 studies for the Caldwell, Ohio, post office mural represent with carefully observed detail different aspects of rural industry in a single, unified scene. The grain elevator and smoke stack of a town in the distance suggest the links between the individual farm and the larger world beyond.

Apple Picking. Blakeslee's colorful study of apple picking in the Shenandoah Valley for the Strasburg, Virginia, post office (1935/36) is in a more sketchy, impressionistic style, that gives a sense of spontaneity to the working figures. A more timeless view of rural life is found in Judson Smith's study for the Rockville, Maryland, post office mural. In Smith's panoramic vista, an ordered checkerboard of fertile, gently rolling fields recedes serenely into the distance.

Images of heroic workers of all types abound in the mural studies, and the artists' sympathy with the workers is clear, in both subtle and not-so-subtle ways. There is an implied criticism of the social order in a number of the paintings. The socially conscious, "Social Realist" artists of the '30s found inspiration in the example of the great Mexican muralists of the '20s, whose work reflected the ideals of the Mexican Revolution.

The Unemployed (1939/40), a full-scale detail study submitted as part of Saul Levine's design proposal for the competition for the mural decorations of the Social Security Building in Washington, shows the unemployed worker as a solemn, dignified figure, his troubled face partially shrouded in shade. This study and several others in the show are unusual in that they are executed in egg tempera, a medium that gives great clarity and power to the bold, linear forms favored by the Social Realists.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF ICELAND, an exhibition of works by Virginia C. Behan and Laura P. McPhee, will open with a reception on Friday from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Arts Council Gallery.

Ben Shahn, who worked with Mexican muralist Diego Rivera in the early '30s, is represented by a detail study of Carpenters (1942), from his design for the Social Security murals, which won him a commission to decorate the main corridor of the building. Shahn's carpenters are faceless figures, blocked out in solid areas of black and white. The artist creates an effective tension in the composition between the overlapping diagonals of the bright yellow two-by-fours and the flat, turquoise field beneath. In 1944, Shahn, one of this area's most famous artists, called the Social Security mural "the best work I've done."

New Jersey Artists. Other New Jersey artists whose work is included in the show are Bernarda Bryson Shahn, Clarence Carter, Bernard Gussow and Michale Lenson. Curiously, both Bernarda Shahn's Building America, an almost surreal design for a mural for the Bronx, New York, post office, and Carter's crisp-edged architectural study, Construction (1935), for the Springfield, Ohio, post office, feature a cornstalk in the foreground, juxtaposed with an architectural setting, perhaps to suggest that America's greatness, as evidenced by its industry and technology, is rooted in the land.

Lenson's New Jersey History mural design for the Weehawken post office demonstrates the problematic nature of history painting in the New Deal era. The episodes from colonial history which the artist chooses to illustrate are enacted by wooden figures in a spare "stage set."

By contrast, Mitchell Siporin's detail studies in egg tempera for the John Brown panel of his famous 1942 murals for the St. Louis post office make a powerful, emotional statement about racial oppression and are comparable in their expressive, linear style to the work of the Mexican muralists. In Siporin's composition, the abolitionist is portrayed as a Moses-like figure, who dramatically shields a negro slave from the bounty hunters or lynch mob advancing on him with torches raised.

With the onset of World War II, this type of social criticism was labeled unpatriotic, and government funding for art dried up in the face of the war effort. In the later 1940s with the onset of abstract expressionism, painting returned to the province of the avant-garde, although the scale of the New Deal mural projects left its mark on the new school of painters.

Only recently has the achievement of the New Deal mural artists begun to be reevaluated, and Squibb Gallery is to be thanked for bringing this timely exhibit to our area. "Painting America" continues at Squibb through May 12.

Exhibits

The Arts Council Gallery will next feature "Iceland," collaborative photographs by Virginia Cadwallader Beahan and Laura Pryde McPhee. The opening reception will take place on Friday from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Arts Council, 102 Witherspoon Street. The exhibition will continue through June 5.

In the summer of 1986, Laura McPhee accompanied her father, John McPhee, to Iceland. She found the landscape fascinating: "Everything happened so close to the surface...," she recalled, "The tack of vegetation and the exposed landscape made the earth appear raw. It seemed to communicate something almost psychological because it was so rough, so revealed."

Ms. McPhee and Ms. Beahan returned to Iceland in June, 1987, to take the photographs included in this exhibition. Ms. McPhee teaches photography at Massachusetts College of Art. Ms. Beahan teaches photography at the Philadelphia College of Art, Moore College of Art, and is the photography assistant at Princeton University.

A survey exhibition of artworks assembled by Philadelphia's Works Gallery, one of the nation's leading craft galleries, will be presented at Educational Testing Service through June 4.

The show presents art in many media, including paper, metal and cloth. It will be held in the Henry Chauncey Conference Center.

Montgomery National Bank in Rocky Hill will sponsor an exhibit of wood relief carvings by Belle Mead artist John Timmerman from May 9 through June 9.

The centerpiece of the exhibit will be a large, multiple-panel work, Flight of the Zebra, consisting of five panels made of brown ash wood.

TRIUMPH OF COSTUMING: Trees wait in the hallway outside the Princeton High School auditorium for their next entrance with some of the Wolves. Parents and teachers made all the costumes, including the headdresses, in the week leading up to the performance.

Persephone

stage manager, with Judy Townsend, the other junior class teacher, as backstage director.

When they weren't busy in rehearsals, the junior class helped paint the backdrops. Their parents worked on costumes. Earl Potts, age eight or so, drew the picture of Persephone being abducted which illustrated the cover of the program and was also imprinted on purple t-shirts given to every member of the cast.

Ms. Kalpin is also credited as co-designer with Gunthild Reichold, a parent, of individualized costumes for all 46 members of the cast. Zeus (played by John Kalpin) and Hera (Nicola Matthews) were resplendent in purple and gold robes. The Olympian gods and goddesses were garbed in white and given individual headdresses and other identifying accessories.

Iris (Ilene Goldstein), the Rainbow Messenger, had a rainbow-colored bonnet fashioned from a paper plate and tied with multi-colored ribbons, while her partner Hermes (Eron Bucciarelli-Tieger) had silver wings attached to the sides of his white cap. Hestia (played by Libby Channon), Tender of the Fire, wore an orange stole over her white gown and carried a silver bowl filled with orange shredded cellophane, while Hephaestus (Matthew Weber), God of Fire, brandished a mallet to show his prowess as the blacksmith.

The only adults in the cast were music teacher Cyndi Girardet, who played Aphrodite, Goddess of Love; Dan Gallogher, who was recruited at the last minute to play Aries, God of War; and Janet Davis, a professional singer and choir director, who sang the more demanding role of Demeter. The part of Persephone was charmingly enacted by Caroline Perkins, wearing a pale pink gown adorned with pink ribbons and a wreath of flowers in her hair.

Other gods and goddesses who assembled on Mt. Olympus for a feast in the first scene were Dionysus (Devin McQueeny), God of Wine, wearing a wreath of grape leaves, sporting a cider jug and singing the praise of "wine, wonderful wine"; Artemis (Georgette Shamyer), Goddess of the Hunt, in brown and green, with bow and arrow and haunch of venison at her side; Athena (Kelly Chew), Goddess of Wisdom, who had wise things to say;

Also Poseidon (Earl Potts), God of the Sea, with a crown made of shells and sea things; and Apollo (Christopher Brenner), God of the Arts, wearing a gold cape and playing his lyre. In a clear voice Apollo sang, "My gift is music, what more do we need?" and escorted the muses (Melis Arslan, Alexis DeRosa, Celeste Gabai, Melissa Brenner, Meghan Everett, Brittany Golcher, Marin Blitzer and Stasi Reichold) on stage. Each was gowned in diaphanous white with a distinguishing emblem to let us know which art she championed.

When all were assembled, the feast began. The gods and goddesses sang a jaunty chorus, with the refrain: "We celebrate our family, we live in harmony." All is well on Mt. Olympus — for the time being.

In the Meadow. Scene II introduced the natural world in the form of Trees (Kenny Easwaran, Jeffrey Stewart, Aaron Wolf-Levy, and Jesse Brooke with branching, leafy headdresses and leaves all over their green tunics); Wolves (Ronald Burbella, Andy Murray, Christophe Difo, Daniel Plimpton and Alastair Matthews, wearing grey tunics and black wolf-masks with fangs); and the Winds (Scout Townsend, Justin Massimo, Matt Harney, and Alex Craig in filmy blue to purple capes).

Helios (Jason Abellana), God of the Sun, arrived in a gold chariot pulled by five white horses (Jarrett Hawkins, Stephen Barbieri, Ronjon Bhattacharyya, Eron Bucciarelli-Tieger and Paul Berkey). Dressed in white tunics trimmed in gold, they wore realistic white horse heads. The swineherd, played by Mainn Chen, brought along his three pigs (Jarrett Hawkins, Ronjon Bhattacharyya and Stephen Barbieri, who had changed from the horse costumes into brown burlap with true pig snouts and pig ears) to roll in the mud.

Persephone came to pick flowers and dance with the nymphs (Celeste Gabai, Meghan Everett, Marin Blitzer, and Melis Arslan). Into this pastoral scene burst Hades (Robert Shamyer), clothed in black and determined to take Persephone away to be his queen. Persephone begged to be allowed to stay in her beloved meadow, saying that her mother would miss her, but Hades persisted.

Scene III depicted the wanderings of Demeter in search of her daughter. She questioned Hecate (Stasi Reichold), Goddess of the Moon, and the River Goddess (Brittany Golcher), who told her Persephone had been taken to the Underworld. Callidice (Alexis DeRosa), a mortal, tried to cheer her up by taking her to the castle of Celeus (Paul Berkey) and Metaneira (Melissa Brenner), who asked her to nurse their sick baby to health.

Jealous that the mortals had a child when hers was lost, Demeter tried to throw the infant into the fire. Foiled, she cursed the earth, and winter ensued. In Scene IV, the gods and the swineherd bemoaned the lack of crops. All the gods and goddesses then brought their own special gifts to Demeter in an effort to cheer her up, but she was adamant in her grief that "no grain shall grow."

Zeus intervened and sent his messengers to the Underworld to bring back Persephone. Scene V took place at the River Styx, with Hermes persuading Charon (Nick Neuberg), the boatman of the River Styx, to ferry him across to the Underworld. Cerberus (Jet Satow), the dog who guards the Underworld, was in the stern of the boat.

Happy Ending. There was a tussle with Hades, who was reluctant to let his lovely wife go, and a surprise appearance by the gardener (who joined the cast at such a late moment that his name was omitted from the program) who tempted Persephone with the pomegranate. However, all ended satisfactorily with the compromise that has given us our four seasons.

Persephone and her mother were reunited. Warmth returned to the earth. Joy reigned again on Mt. Olympus. Everyone gathered for the finale, and they sang: "Green is our garden and fair is the earth, blossoms and flowers fill us with mirth" to Mr. Jones's lilting piano accompaniment.

In taking his bow, Mr. Jones remarked that this week, with spring in full bloom in Princeton, was the perfect time of year to re-enact the story of Persephone. "Spring has returned, and hope is renewed," he said.

The children of the Princeton Montessori School who went home with applause ringing in their ears may not have been thinking in quite those terms. But they had learned a lot about Greek mythology in one short week, and about what it feels like to be on a big stage and to perform in costume and make-up, under lights, with music, to an audience.

Earthwatch Expeditions Promoted by Watershed

The Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association is promoting "Earthwatch" travel adventures.

Each year Earthwatch sponsors hundreds of research expeditions in the United States and around the globe. Expeditions range from exploring Mayan ceremonial caves in South America to monitoring humpback whales off Maui.

Earthwatch is a Massachusetts-based, non-profit organization whose goal is to support the research efforts of scholars in various conservation-related projects. By offering ordinary citizens the opportunity to participate in these projects, Earthwatch accomplishes two objectives. It expands the citizens' knowledge of the world in which they live, and it also advances scholars' research efforts by providing a steady corps of volunteer researchers.

This summer, Earthwatch is offering more than 140 expeditions. A sampling within the United States includes exploring Shenandoah wildlife in Front Royal, Va.; saving the leatherback turtle, U.S. Virgin Islands; monitoring the orcas, Puget Sound, Washington; excavating a mammoth graveyard, Hot Springs, S.D.; and searching for New England settlers, Isle of Shoals, N.H.

Expedition costs vary for each program and are tax-deductible. Earthwatch has proposed that the Watershed Association be given $100 for every volunteer recruited from its area.

For more information call the Watershed Association at 737-3735.

Benefit Flea Market Set for Friends School

Princeton Friends School will hold a benefit flea market on Saturday, May 14, from 10 until 4 in the parking lot of the Friends Meeting at the corner of Mercer Street and Quaker Road. In the event of rain, the market will take place indoors at the Quaker Meeting.

Items for sale will include books, sports equipment, small appliances and furniture, records, clothing and baked goods. Contributions to the flea market will be gratefully accepted. Call the school at 683-1194 during the day or Scarlett Ober at 466-1536, evenings, to arrange to drop off sale items at the school by Friday, May 13.

Princeton Friends School opened this year with 20 students in grades one through seven. The school will expand to approximately 35 students in grades one through eight for the 1988-89 academic year. Applications are still being accepted for the few remaining places in next year's student body.

Parents who are interested in visiting the school or who would like to receive further information and application materials should call 683-1194, preferably after 3:30 in the afternoon.

Feminist Theology Topic Of Lecture at Stuart

The Rev. Hazel Staats-Westover will speak on "Feminist Theology: My Understanding of the Women's Movement as a Religious Movement," Tuesday at 7:30 at Stuart School. The lecture is the 12th in the Janet Stuart series which the school has been sponsoring since 1985 as part of its effort to raise public consciousness regarding women's achievements and concerns.

Ms. Staats-Westover has been active in the causes of women's rights and world peace for more than 20 years. Her resume is an extensive one, ranging across seven colleges and many nations as a graduate student, visiting lecturer, faculty member, administrator, preacher and consultant.

At Chicago Theological Seminary she supervised graduate field work, taught courses on liberation, and founded an ecumenical women's center. She has pursued women's studies at Harvard Divinity School, where she was a member of the women's caucus and worked as an author, editor and television producer.

At Princeton University she has been coordinator for women students at the Women's Center, and at New Brunswick Theological Seminary she has been consultant for women being ordained in the Reformed Church of America. At Mercer County Community College she has been producer and host of a weekly radio show, "Focus on Women."

Ms. Staats-Westover is the National Organization for Women's representative to the National Council of Churches on Justice for Women, and she

Benefit at High School For 'Kids on the Block'

A benefit for Kids on the Block, Puppets About Aging, will be held Saturday at 7:30 in the Princeton High School Auditorium. Scheduled to perform are The Princeton University Nassoons, the combined Gospel Choirs of the First Baptist Church, the Princeton High School Orchestra, the Countertones, the Cat's Meow, jugglers and mimes.

Proceeds will benefit the puppet show, "You Should Live So Long," to be performed in the Princeton Community.

The puppets tell the story of Mary Margaret Riley, an active woman of 73, who is recovering from a stroke. Her grandson, Michael, is curious about his grandmother's slurred speech and walker, and upset about the changes that have taken place in her life.

With the introduction of Pete Whetstone, Mary Margaret's friend and Michael's scout leader, Michael comes to terms with the process of growing old and his stereotypes about it, while Mary Margaret learns to take the physical and emotional steps necessary to her recovery.

The event is co-sponsored by the high school's Intergenerational Council and the Arts Council. Committee members include James Floyd, Jocelyn Helms, Karen Jezierny, Anne Reeves, Jeanne Sylvester, Ron Horowitz, Jean Canning, Shara Porter, Charles Kirby, Mark Caputo and Gillian Godfrey. Honororary chairpersons are Mayors Barbara Sigmund and Kate Litvack.

Tickets are $4 and are available at the Arts Council, the Senior Resource Center, and at the door.

SAY "HI" TO THE KIDS ON THE BLOCK at a benefit for Kids on the Block, Puppets About Aging, on Saturday at 7:30 in the Princeton High School Auditorium. Shown, with the puppets, are Jean Canning, left, and Shara Porter. The event is sponsored by the Princeton High School Intergenerational Council and the Arts Council.

Bird Watching Trip To Brigantine Refuge

Brigantine National Wildlife Refuge (now called Forsythe National Wildlife Refuge) is an important stop on the Atlantic flyway for a large variety of birds. The Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association will sponsor a trip to the refuge on Saturday.

Springtime is a particularly exciting time at this refuge with resident birds returning and a large number of northern breeders passing through during migration. Birds will be abundant, and there will be opportunities to view the glossy ibis, the short-billed dowitcher, herons, ducks, egrets, sandpipers, gulls, terns and other species.

The trip departs by van at 8 and will return by 4. Participants will meet at the Watershed Headquarters building on Titus Mill Road in Hopewell Township. Preregistration is required, and there is a $20 fee for members, $30 for nonmembers.

To register or for more information call the Stony Brook-Miltstone Watershed Association at 737-3735.

Weight Control Program With Exercise at YWCA

Princeton Medical Center is offering a weight control program in conjunction with the YWCA.

The Medical Center's Weight No More program will be offered along with two 30-minute exercise classes at the Y. Weight No More classes will be on Mondays at 11 a.m., starting May 9, and the exercise classes on Wednesdays and Fridays. The exercise classes will consist of low-impact aerobics. The cost of the program is $200.

There will be an introductory meeting on Monday, May 2. For information call 921-7700, extension 4002.

Free Exercise Class

The YMCA is offering free exercise classes beginning Monday and ending Saturday, May 14. Classes on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday from 10 to 11 a.m. are free, as well as on Tuesday and Thursday 7 to 8 p.m. Interested individuals may call the YMCA for specific details, 497-YMCA.

Betty Lies of Cherry Hill Road, head of the English Department at Stuart Country Day School, is one of 12 educators nationwide to be named a 1988-89 Joseph Klingenstein Fellow at Columbia University.

Mrs. Lies has been named the 1988-89 recipient of the faculty sabbatical award at Stuart so that she will be available for the seminars, lectures, field trips and independent research which make up the program of the Klingenstein Fellowship.

Mrs. Lies' special interest is to examine the effect of the study of poetry on one's expository writing. In the summer of 1985, she was a fellow in a National Endowment for the Humanities seminar, "Shakespeare: Enacting the Text," at the University of Delaware and Stratford-on-Avon, England. In the summer of 1986, as recipient of a grant from the Council for Basic Education, she studied the motherless woman in Shakespeare's plays, traveling to Stratford-on-Avon once again to pursue her subject.

Last summer she took Stuart students to England for "Shakespeare-in-Performance," a course given by the Shakespeare Institute of the University of Birmingham. Stuart students, the first high schoolers ever admitted to the program, heard lectures, participated in seminars, attended many performances of Shakespeare's plays, and met cast members, directors and other professionals of the Royal Shakespeare Company.

Mrs. Lies graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Carleton College, attended the University of St. Andrews, Scotland, and holds an M.A. from the University of Wisconsin. She has taught at Stuart since 1971, and her "Macbeth Project" has been a staple of 10th grade English at Stuart for 16 years.

Mrs. Lies has organized two poet-in-residence programs at Stuart. She has also served as an admissions committee member, as a senior class advisor, and as advisor for the creative writing club. She has served, too, as a worker in Appalachia with Stuart's Summer of Service program. Mrs. Lies has also contributed to the various activities of the Network of Sacred Heart Schools.

She is a member of the teacher advisory committee for the Geraldine Dodge Foundation Poetry Festival, has been a fellow of the New Jersey Writing Project, and plays the flute with the Princeton Community Orchestra.

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Christopher Caro, son of Dom and Colleen Caro, 5 West Shore Drive, Pennington, has reenlisted for four years while serving with Strike Fighter Squadron-192, embarked aboard the aircraft carrier USS Midway, homeported in Yokosuka, Japan.

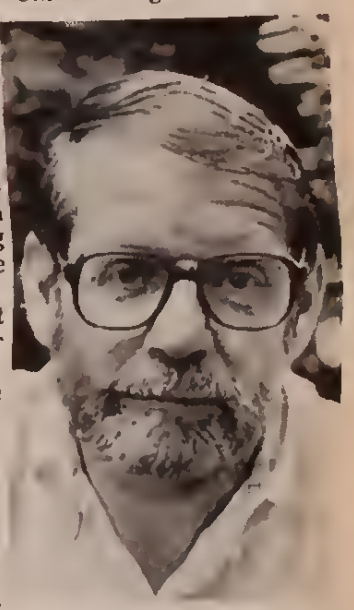
The 1988 Prix Coindreau, for the year's best French translation of American literature, has been won by L'Ombre d'une Presence, the French title of A Presence with Secrets by W.M. Spackman, 1016 Mercer Road, a novel originally published in the United States by Knopf in 1980.

The translation, praised by the French press as "inspired" and "in every way remarkable," was done by Bernard Turle, whom L'Express saluted for "an irreproachable version of a little masterpiece hitherto thought impossible to translate."

The American Academy of Arts and Letters recognized Mr. Spackman's novels and critical writing as a whole in 1985 with the Vursell award for style. In 1986, he received the University of Colorado Medat, also for his work as a whole.

Robert P. Climko M.D., director of the Addictive Treatment Program at Princeton House, has been certified by the American Medical Society on Alcoholism and Other Drug Dependencies. This certification is attained by successful passage of an examination on clinical knowledge and expertise in chemical dependence.

Dr. Climko is a graduate of Rutgers University and the University of Noreste Medical School in Tompice, Mexico. He spent his internship at New York Medical College and his residency at UMDNJ-Rutgers in Piscataway. He is a clinical assistant psychiatrist at UMDNJ-Rutgers.



John McPhee of Drakes Corner Road, a staff writer for the New Yorker and author of 19 books, will receive the New Jersey Pride Award presented by New Jersey Monthly magazine recently at the Parsippany Hilton. Proceeds from the event benefitted the New Jersey Special Olympics.

Mr. McPhee is well-known for his masterful non-fiction writing. He tackles topics ranging from the Pine Barrens to Alaska, from practicing family medicine in Maine to developing an experimental aircraft in New Jersey and growing oranges in Florida. He has also written memorable profiles of basketball star/U.S. Senator Bill Bradley, Deerfield School headmaster Frank Boyden, tennis players Arthur Ashe and Clark Graebner, and Sierra Club head David Brower. More recently he has been writing book-length articles on the geology of a coast-to-coast mid-section of the continental United States and pieces on efforts to control nature in various parts of the world.

For all the success of his writing, Mr. McPhee keeps a low profile, teaching his spring "Literature of the Fact" course at Princeton University and working on his writing projects. In an interview in New Jersey Monthly magazine, he is quoted as saying: "I profoundly wish my work would be what was known and not myself. I don't want the cart to get before the horse because I think it is very bad for the horse."

IT'S NEW To Us

Teak Garden Furniture Featured at Little Eden

"The main thing I feature is English teak garden furniture, including chairs, benches and tables," says Sunny Rector, owner of Little Eden at 6½ Chambers Street. "The beauty of this furniture is not only in the design — which is classic — but in the fact that it is made of teak, which can be left outdoors all year long. It requires no maintenance.

"The designs are beautiful," she adds, "and the furniture is very, very comfortable."

Before opening Little Eden last December, Ms. Rector had a similar store, Twenty One, in New Hope, Pa. The prospect of additional New Jersey customers encouraged her to move the business to Princeton, and she has not been disappointed. "I wanted more business, and I think for the kind of things I deal in, there will be more customers in New Jersey. Also, many of the New Hope customers will come here.

"I feel encouraged already," she continues. "There have already been repeat customers. My winter was very good. There were a lot of customers from last year. The house has become so important for people now. They're doing all they can to enhance it. Even if they don't have too much space, they still want something nice.

"It takes time to get going, of course, and for people to get to know you, but I believe Princeton is a good location for my store."

Ms. Rector's background has been in art, and she is particularly concerned with the visual aspect of the items in her shop. "I love beautiful things," she remarks. "I always have and I always will. I feel I know beautiful things when I see them, and there is an appreciation of that in the store.

"But, in addition," she continues, "I want to offer not only things that are beautiful, but also good value for the money. This furniture really lasts forever. In England, there are benches that are 50 years old. The initial investment can be high if you buy a lot, but it will last and last."

Newly Popular. She adds that the English teak garden furniture has become very popular and is highly visible in many parks and municipal outdoor areas, as well as being displayed extensively in house and garden magazines.

Deciding on how many pieces, or what type, of outdoor furniture to buy can be a challenge, and Ms. Rector will help customers by taking a first-hand look at their location. "As a service, I will go to people's homes and help advise what grouping of furniture will go well with their terrace or in the garden. This is an investment, and I want them to be happy with what they buy.

"There are two things to consider in garden furniture: one is furniture for a site or a specific place — people might want a bench overlooking a vista in their garden, for instance; and two, tables and dining chairs for entertaining and eating out on the terrace. You really can eat out five months of the year if you want to. Also, people often want loungers and other items for the pool area."

Different styles of chairs, tables and benches are available she notes, and though all are popular, a few seem to be singled out by customers.

"People love the Luytens bench," she reports. "It's been extremely popular. Its design is a reproduction of one by the famous English architect, Edwin Luytens.

FIRST-CLASS FURNITURE: "I think I have a shop where people can find really beautiful things," says Sunny Rector, owner of Little Eden on Chambers Street. Shown with her Pembroke Welsh Corgi, Woody, Ms. Rector is especially proud of the shop's selection of English teak garden furniture.

Steamer Chair. "People also love the deck chairs which are reproductions of the steamer chairs from the trans-Atlantic ocean liners. Many people also bring these inside the house."

Another line of garden chairs, the American-made Adirondack, is also available at Little Eden in cedar or teak. The English garden furniture comes in its natural color, and Ms. Rector notes that "People have asked for white garden furniture, too. Cedar can be painted, but teak is oily and hard and doesn't take paint well. We will have another line of very hard wood which will be painted white."

Other garden items at the shop include handsome teak or fiberglass planters, garden bells in large or small sizes with a verdigris finish and swan or hummingbird design and decorative garden ornaments, such as lead rabbits in several sizes.

Another favorite is the shop's selection of trugs — or English garden baskets for carrying tools, plants, etc. They are available in different sizes, and the smallest are known as "truglets." Ms. Rector adds that aside from its practical use in the garden, the trug can also serve as a decorative centerpiece for the table when filled with dried flowers.

An assortment of other fine quality gift items is available at Little Eden, including framed and matted botanical prints, Italian marble fruit and Italian hand-marbled paper items in a variety of designs. "The paper items are really lovely and make wonderful gifts," says Ms. Rector. "There's a whole range, including picture frames and marvelous little boxes, as well as small address books, ball point pens, waste baskets, match boxes, stationery, and even a bookmark. The photo albums can make lovely wedding gifts.

"We also have Italian, hand-dyed and hand-stamped velvet pillows in the Fortuny stye," she continues. "These are really magnificent. They can look wonderful in different settings, whether very luxurious or simple. There is also a very special Italian velvet wall hanging."

Other gifts include linen placemats and beautiful hand-embroidered cocktail napkins, as well as yarn-dyed linen robes, towels and linen sheet sets, "which are pure luxury and last forever. They're wonderful — cool in summer and comfortable in winter."

Needlepoint card table covers with various designs, such as Monopoly, fox hunting, polo and a gambling motif, are also available, as are handsome tea caddy lamps.

Little Eden. English teak gardeo chairs are $150 to $385, with the best-selling armchairs at $325. Planters start at $175, lead rabbits at $30, and garden bells are $55 to $115.

Marble fruit is $12.50 and the Italian hand-marbled paper items range from $1.75 for the bookmark to $145 for the photo album, with many prices in between.

Little Eden is truly a treasure trove of very special, extraordinary items — a place where you will find purchases of lasting value and gifts to remember. Ms. Rector is looking forward to introducing her shop to more and more Princeton customers. As she says, "I really love it when people come in and they know what you have and appreciate it. It makes it so enjoyable."

Little Eden is open Tuesday through Saturday, 10:30 to 5.

CRAFTS FROM COAST TO COAST: A new crafts shop, Chosen Works, has just opened on Main Street in Kingston. American-made specialties, such as pottery, jewelry, blown glass, weavings, inlay work, miniature baskets and Woody Jackson's famous cow T-shirts are all available, representing the work of artists from Maine to California.

American Crafts Offered At New 'Chosen Works'

"I opened the store because this is what I really like. It's what I've always wanted," says Nance Pickens, owner of Chosen Works, the new crafts shop at 61 Main Street in Kingston.

"I'm very much a crafts appreciater," she adds. "My first thought for a gift is always crafts. It was always my hope to have my own shop, and I was looking for a space in a community or small town, rather than a shopping center. When I discovered this, it seemed to be the best spot. I hve a lot of respect for what Lindsy Gumbiner has done with Country Kids and Sue Simpkins with Main Street. There's a lot of potential for the future here."

Originally from Maine, Mrs. Pickens had worked in a crafts gallery and a variety of other businesses before deciding to open her own shop. "I felt that this area needed a crafts gallery that was exclusively crafts," she explains. "When Full House closed, it seemed that Kingston was a good place. I think that crafts are appreciated here."

A variety of crafts, from pottery to unusual jewelry, is on display in the shop, and Mrs. Pickens makes a point of selecting American-made crafts. "I feel really strong in support of the American craftsperson," she notes, "and the artists are from everywhere, from California to Maine, as well as some from nearby areas.

"I've gone out and found every artist," she continues. "Meeting the craftspeople themselves is important to me. It adds another dimension to their work when you know and like the artists. So many creative people are wonderful. They have great personalities, and you can see it reflected in their work. Almost everyone has a certain sense of their craft."

Mrs. Pickens adds that she makes it a point not to offer the work of artists carried by other crafts shops in the area, nor does she carry country crafts. "I think the crafts I have will blend nicely with any decor. They can go well with antiques as well as contemporary styles."

Affordable. Quality and affordability are also important to her. when she makes a selection. "Quality is number one with me," she says. "I only buy from crafts professionals, those who make their living making crafts. Also, one of my criteria is to stay within a certain price range. I want this to be considered an affordable crafts shop. There's a real need for crafts for the everyday person. I think people are beginning to like the idea that they have something that not everyone else has. They like something that is hand-done."

One of the great pleasures of opening her shop was the opportunity to organize and design the space according to her taste. "I have to admit that the initial excitement of getting it going and started was special. I loved arranging the merchandise and setting up the store. I designed everything — all the displays and furniture, and my husband, Tim, built everything. This was really challenging. He's very talented, and I couldn't have done it without him.

"One of the things I've tried to achieve," she continues, "is to make the shop look like someone's house. The pottery and other items are displayed as in a house. There's a corner cabinet, for example, a bookcase and a table in the center of the room, not just display cases."

Mrs. Pickens has also grouped the crafts together by area, creating a nice visual display, as well as helping customers recognize different types of work. Prices are also well marked, and Mrs. Pickens is always available to answer questions and offer information. "I want to meet my customers," she says. "That's really important to me. I will also take requests for certain kinds of crafts people want. If they meet the quality of my other crafts, I'll try to include them.

Repeat Customers. "I really feel encouraged," she adds. "There have already been a lot of repeat customers in just the few weeks we've been open. The response has been very good. Several people have mentioned they miss Full House. and one lady just said today, 'It's good to have you here.'"

Jewelry has been especially popular, she reports, adding, "I'm happy to say we have nice inexpensive jewelry. We carry the creations of at least 10 different artists at $20 or less. Earrings are particularly popular, and we have clips for those who don't have pierced ears. The earrings are made of porcelain, plastic, paper, wood, fabric, ivory and silver. I've especially sold a lot of paper jewelry from an artist in Georgia. The work is really very special."

Another specialty in the shop is the selection of cow-motif items by Woody Jackson. Silkscreened cow T-shirts and note paper are available and have been very popular. "People really like the cows," laughs Mrs. Pickens. "Woody lives in Vermont and has been creating his cows for 12 years. He is known as the cow person. The T-shirts are whimsical and fun. They bring people in who might not be interested in serious crafts work. And vice versa. People can come in for other crafts and then be delighted with the T-shirts. It adds a whole other dimension to the store."

Wooden cow clocks, stools and towel racks from the Vermont Sled Company are also available.

There is a wide range of pottery, from mugs, bowls, vases and dishes to clocks and lamps. A fun — and functional — gift for a cook is the "Bakato," a dish in which you can both bake and serve a potato. A similar one for a baked apple is also on hand.

Southwest bakeware from Texas, Mochaware from Maine, and fish pottery from California, all in many styles and designs, are displayed in a series of interesting groupings.

Eileen B. Saums, Allied Member A.S.I.D., speaks on What's New For Spring?

Eileen B. Saums

Having just returned from the Spring Furniture Market in High Point, N.C., I was most impressed by the fresh ideas and new merchandise displayed at this most respected show. A wide variety of accessories were highlighted; e.g. brass candle shields, mahogany plate frames, a mahogany tri-level plant stand for the formal dining room in your home.

The different furniture treatments were of interest, especially design skirt styles on upholstery, unique cushion types, leather "motion" furniture wing chairs, lamps with dinner switches and much more than I can mention in this column.

The trip was very exhilarating for both myself and my faithful companion (my mother) and we purchased all kinds of "neat" things — probably too much for our limited space! Therefore, we realize we'll need to move out existing furniture and accessories to make room for the new

Our present inventory display includes some wonderful pieces: a yew wood secretary desk, mahogany flip-top table, a loveseat upholstered in a bottle green with rust design fabric, a beige sofa/chair with bun feet, a soft green-checked tub chair, a contemporary 78" sleep sofa ... all of these plus lamps and accessories will be at our Special Prices. We also have a four-piece wicker set (just right for the porch) that is 20% off.

These are just a sampling of the great bargains we have for you. Stop in while there is still a nice selection.

And for those who write with individual requests, I've provided a coupon below for those special needs.

News of Clubs and Organizations

The Princeton Macintosh Users' Group will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday in room C-207 of the Princeton University Engineering Quadrangle, Olden Street.

Jim Perry, editorial artist for The New York Times, and a resident of Princeton, will speak on using the Adobe Illustrator drawing program.

The group will also hold a meeting on Thursday devoted to composing and playing music with the Macintosh. On Wednesday, May 18, the club will meet to talk about desktop publishing. These two meetings will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Room 101 of the Princeton University Computing Center. For more information, call Richard Williams at 397-8438.

All club meetings are open to the public without charge.

The Professional Roster will hold its annual spring meeting on Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the University League lounge, 171 Broadmead. There will be a panel discussion, "Changing Directions and/or Careers," by four women who have successfully made major changes in their careers.

The panelsts will be Deborah H. Burt, a freelance writer and consultant, formerly a law librarian; Sherry D. Epstein, marketing manager, Computer Consulting Group, formerly a Montessori teacher; Audrey Gould, vice president, Merrill Lynch, formerly an orthoptic technician; and Susan Jefferies, caterer and corporate chef, formerly a medical secretary and cancer researcher.

A question-and-answer period will follow the discussion, and the public is invited to attend. For further information, call 921-9561 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. weekdays, or 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday evenings.

The Princeton Chapter of Deborah will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the First National Bank of Central Jersey, Rocky Hill. Dr. Mary Leck, professor of biology at Rider College, will speak on wildflowers of New Jersey.

The public is invited. For more information, call 359-0862.

The Friday Club will meet May 6 in the All Purpose Room of the YWCA. Tony Patterson, of the N.J. Division on Tourism, will show slides of New Jersey.

Le Cercle Francais will meet on Sunday at 7 in the McAlpin Room, Woolworth Center, Princeton University campus, to hear a concert of French Baroque music. Nathan Randall will make a brief presentation in English, followed by a resume in French by Etienne Harnad.

Works by Philidor, de Caix-D'Herveloix, Dufay and Francois Couperin, among others, will be on the program. The musicians will be Etienne Harnad, recorder; Aleks Frosztega, harpsichord; Laverne Shelton, viola da gamba; and Lisa Frost, mezzo-soprano.

The concert is free, and open to the public.

The Photography Club will meet Wednesday, May 11, at 8 p.m. at the Arts Council, 102 Witherspoon Street. Nature and animal photographer Walter Chandoha will speak on "Photographing Animals."

People interested in the club may call Caroline Fawcett at 466-4037.

The Junior Woman's Club will sponsor an Adorable Baby Contest from May 13 through June 1 to benefit Save the Children, a nonprofit agency that supports children and their developing communities. Entries for the contest will be accepted until May 9. The contest will be limited to the first 20 entries received.

To enter, send a current photo, not larger than 5x7, and a $2 entry fee to: Princeton Area Junior Woman's Club, c/o Kathy Tymonko, 8 Florister Drive, Hamilton Square, N.J. 08690.

Children age 4 and under are eligible. Checks should be made payable to the Princeton Area Junior Woman's Club and a stamped, self-addressed envelope should be included to have the photograph returned.

The photos will be displayed at the SuperFresh supermarket in Plainsboro from May 13 to June 1. Winners will be notified by June 12. Votes may be cast at a penny a vote to select a winner. First prize is a $100 United States Savings Bond. Second prize is a $25 gift certificate, and third prize is a teddy bear.

The Scuba Club will hold its annual auction and equipment swap at the Princeton Junction Fire House on Saturday. The swap will run from 1 to 6, and the auction will start at 3.

For further information, call Princeton Aqua Sports at 924-4240.

The Christian Business Men's Committee will hold a luncheon meeting at 12:30 p.m. on May 16 at the Hyatt Regency-Princeton. Joe Burke, experimental test pilot for Grumann Aerospace, will profess his faith.

For further information, call Eugene Blicharz at 771-6952.

American Legion Post 414, Lawrence Township, will hold its annual dinner dance on Saturday, May 14, from 6:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Post Home, 100 Berwyn Place. The event, open to the public, costs $35 a couple, and consists of cocktails, hot hors d'oeuvre, a buffet dinner, music and dancing. A ceremony honoring Legionaire John McBride will be held during the evening.

For reservations, call 882-9701.

The Astrological Society will meet on Sunday at 2:30 p.m. at the First National Bank of Central Jersey, Rocky Hill. Rob Hand will speak on "Musical Meditations on Planetary Symbols."

On Saturday, Mr. Hand will offer a workshop on "Planetary Cycles in the Stock Market." For further information, call 924-4311 or 924-1827.

Princeton Business and Professional Women will meet Monday at the Ramada Inn, Route 1. Patricia Lynch, administrator of Union County Hospital, will speak on how to balance the pressures of career and home.

A cocktail and networking hour will begin at 5:30, and the dinner meeting will start at 6:30. Reservations are necessary. Cost is $18 for club members and $22 for nonmembers.

For reservations, call Jo Konover at 452-2072 weekdays from 10 to 4.

The Amateur Astronomers Association of Princeton will hold a members' night on Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Peyton Hall, Princeton University. All members are asked to present their projects or to recount experiences related to their particular spheres of interest in the field.

American Legion Post 76 will hold a flea market on Saturday at 195 Washington Road. Cost of table space is $6. To reserve space, or to donate, call 799-1798.

Handsome pottery planters from North Carolina come in three sizes and make welcome gifts, and as Mrs. Pickens says, "People are always looking for nice lamps, and we have a good selection of hand-thrown and hand-decorated lamps that are outstanding."

An assortment of miniature baskets from Pennsylvania is one of Mrs. Pickens' own favorites, and they can be purely decorative or useful to hold stamps or other small items.

Desk Accessories. A variety of wooden desk accessories, such as letter openers, pens, pencils and letter holders in pretty designs is also available, as are handblown glass tumblers, paper weights and perfume bottles. A special item is the "Glass Eye" oil lamp from Seattle, which includes a fiberglass wick that never burns out.

Everywhere you look in this appealing shop, you are bound to find something you would like yourself, or that you'd like to get for someone else. There is a selection of charming engravings from a New Jersey artist, a variety of silkscreened hand towels and woven place mats, as well as hand-dyed and woven, all-wool rugs in several colors.

"I will also be having Shaker reproduction chairs in a few months," adds Mrs. Pickens. "No one else around here carries these."

Browsing or buying are both fun in this light, airy and uncluttered shop, and the prices can fit a variety of pocketbooks. Jewelry starts at $9.50, "Bakatos" and apple bakers are $7.50, mugs start at $9.75, pottery planters are $12 to $45, lamps $40 to $110, pottery clocks $28 and wooden clocks $37.

Cow T-shirts are $14, place mats $6.50, miniature baskets start at $12 and oil lamps are $19.50. Gift certificates and mailing are also available.

"I want people to know I'm here," says Mrs. Pickens, "and I'm looking forward to continuing to bring them high-quality crafts."

Chosen Works is open Monday through Saturday, 10 to 6.

BUSINESS

In and Around Princeton

New Twist Is Offered To Princeton Consumers

Beginning this week — through a Consumer Bureau program called The Princeton Network — Princeton-area consumers will be able to receive in the mail unlimited automatic cash rebates on most things they buy locally, according to Joe Boyd, Consumer Bureau president.

By using a specially programmed First Jersey National Bank Princeton Network MasterCard at any of more than 200 retail establishments and professional offices participating in the network, consumers will be able to buy a wide range of products and services — from airline tickets and restaurant meals to auto repairs, home furnishings, clothes and gifts — and receive an automatic $25 cash rebate check in the mail every time these purchases add up to $500.

A pocket classified guidebook to Princeton Network participating business and professional people will be available this week from Consumer Bureau's Princeton office, together with applications for First Jersey National Bank Princeton Network MasterCards, which keep track of the cardholder's purchases within the network and are also internationally accepted, like any other MasterCard, at more than five million retail establishments worldwide.

For any participating consumer who chooses to contribute his or her network cash rebates to a worthy cause, Consumer Bureau will on request, and until otherwise instructed, mail the consumer's cash rebate checks to any civic, religious, political, cultural, environmental or other organization named by the consumer. Interested local organizations are also invited to use The Princeton Network as a convenient means of raising needed funds painlessly and automatically from their members and friends.

Glenn Paul

Glenn Paul, president of Clancy-Paul, graduated from Princeton University in 1979. He founded the company in 1981, with backing from Robert E. Clancy, a 1948 Princeton graduate. Mr. Clancy now serves as chairman of the board of Clancy-Paul, which employs more than 100 persons.

Spring Classes Planned At the Greener House

The Greener House, a hydroponic plant shop and florist located at the Princeton Shopping Center, will hold spring classes. Topics will include "Introduction to Hydroponics," "Caring for Cut Flowers," Transplanting to Hydroponics," and "New Trends in Floral Design."

Classes run 75 minutes. Enrollment is limited to 12. Persons interested may call 924-7718 to request a registration form or may register in person. A nominal fee is charged for each class.

Clancy-Paul Is Acquired By Omaha-Based Firm

Clancy-Paul Inc., computer centers, has announced its pending acquisiton by ValCom, Inc., Omaha, Neb. Terms of the purchase were not disclosed. Closing is anticipated in early May.

Under the terms of the agreement, Clancy-Paul will become a wholly owned, iodependent operating subsidiary of ValCom. The acquisition will make ValCom a nearly $200 million sales organization with 167 outlets in 44 states, according to the firm's president, Bill L. Fairfield.

Clancy-Paul, based in Cranbury, has six computer centers in the State, including one in Princeton. In 1987 it reported sales exceeding $35 million.

Opening of Two Stores At Area Shopping Center

The Sharper Image, a San Francisco-based retail and mail order chain, has opened a new store at MarketFair on Route 1. This will be the 48th store for the firm, which specializes in offering high tech electronics and health and fitness equipment.

Also, Connie, a women's shoe store, has been opened by Wohl Shoe Company.

New Store, Zoli, to Open May 1 on Palmer Square

Zoli, a store offering men's and women's apparel as well as shoes and other accessories, will open May 1 at 5 Palmer Square West.

Featured designers will include Leon Max, Glenn Williams, Yamato and Kikit.

Richard and Bethea Zoli, the owners, opened their first store in New Hope, Pa., ten years ago.

Personnel Notes

Tiger Softball Ends Season, 44-6, and Ivy Champ Again, But Bid to NCAA Tournament May Not Be Forthcoming

Rebounding from two costly losses to Adelphi, the top-ranked team in the East, the Princeton University softball team closed out its regular season last week with six straight victories. Doubleheader sweeps of Seton Hall, St. Peter's, and Villanova brought the six-time Ivy League champion Tigers' final record to an astounding 44-6 (7-1 Ivies).

Coach Cindy Cohen's troops must now wait two weeks to find out if they will be invited to the NCAA tournament. In past years, only one team from the East has been selected for the tourney, but the Tigers' chances of breaking that tradition and securing a bid are by no means remote.

Taking a cue from the softballers, the Tiger baseball team enjoyed a successful week of its own, taking four of five decisions to improve to 19-14 (7-7 EIBL). Getting outstanding pitching in all but one contest, homestanding Princeton beat Monmouth, swept Brown, and split a twinbill with Yale. The first triumph over the Bruins marked coach Tom O'Connell's 300th career victory at the collegiate level.

In other action, the men's lacrosse team (2-9) broke a nine-game losing streak with a win over Villanova last Wednesday, only to get blown out at home three days later by league rival Cornell. The women's lacrosse squad fared much better, ending its 7-7 season on a high note with a narrow defeat of highly-regarded Delaware.

Out on the water, the men's heavyweight crew placed third in the Windermere Cup race at Seattle, the unbeaten lightweights whipped Harvard and Yale, and the women's crew swept past New Hampshire. Also hot at week's end was the men's tennis team, which beat Columbia and Penn State to move to 11-7 (7-0 EITA).

FAZEN IN COMMAND: Robin Fazen pitched the Princeton University women's softball team to a 15-8 victory over St. Peter's Saturday afternoon.

The softball team's long-awaited battle with visiting Adelphi for Eastern supremacy turned out to be little more than an exercise in futility. The Panther hurlers shut down the vaunted Princeton attack and recorded surprisingly easy 10-1 and 2-0 victories.

They Bounce Back. Princeton bounced back in fine form two days later to register a 2-1, 9-0 sweep of Seton Hall. Robbie Fazen went the distance for the win in the opener, assisted by Dawn Wrona's RBI double. Dawn Roberts then tossed a two-hit shutout in the nightcap, striking out 12 and helping her own cause with three RBI's.

An outclassed squad from St. Peter's was the Tiger machine's next victim, going down to 15-8 and 12-2 beatings. Staked to a 9-0 first-inning lead, Fazen coasted to her eighth win in the lidlifter. Angela Tucci led an 11-hit attack with three RBI's. Rookie Christie Susko then went to 8-0 with a five-hitter in the second game, called in the fifth inning in accordance with the ten-run "mercy" rule.

Princeton showed no mercy the next day, either, handing Villanova a pair of 6-0 losses. Tucci (10-1) won the opener, aided by Chris Stuppi's two hits and two RBI's. Roberts then put the finishing touch on a tremendous regular season with a no-hitter in the nightcap. Linda Smolka gave the freshman phenom all the help she needed with a pair of home runs. The no-hitter was the fourth in Tiger history.

By virtue of second-place Yale's 1-0 loss to Harvard last Saturday, the Orange and Black became sole champions of the Ivy League. They'll learn whether that's good enough for a tournament spot on May 15.

Baseball Keeps Trying. The baseball team may not be going anywhere this post-season, but the Tiger batsmen still have a few goals for the final ten days of the campaign. One of them is a first-division finish in the ten-team EIBL, and that became a distinct possibility after last weekend's impressive 3-1 showing against Brown and Yale.

The week began with a 2-1 squeaker over visiting Monmouth, in which lefty Matt Noone recorded his fifth win of the year. Brian Zirlin picked up his sixth save by retiring two batters in the ninth with the tying and go-ahead runs in scoring position. Shortstop Brad Remig — the eighth leading hitter in the EIBL — knocked in both Tiger runs with a pair of RBI singles.

Next up was Brown. The Bruins scored an early run in the opener against Greg Kuzma, but Princeton rallied for four runs in the sixth to post a

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

John Bernard — Jay Bernard

STURHAHN, DICKENSON & BERNARD

One of the greatest hits in baseball history was the unusual home run by Babe Ruth during the 1932 World Series ... Ruth came to bat, stopped the game and pointed to the centerfield bleachers, advising the crowd that he was going to hit a home run to that exact spot on the next pitch — and he did! ... Sportswriters said it was probably the only time in history that a player publicly announced in advance where and when he was going to hit a homer, and then exactly fulfilled his prediction — as to both time and place.

4-1 victory. Kuzma went the distance, scattering four hits, to give O'Connell his milestone victory.

Lefty Joe Sawyer was equally spectacular in the second game, limiting Brown to three hits and fanning three in a 6-1 triumph. Over one stretch, Sawyer retired 14 straight batters. Left fielder Steve Burns notched the game-winning RBI with a run-scoring bloop single in a three-run first.

The stalwart pitching continued in last Sunday's curtain-raiser against Yale, as captain Steve Holland (5-1) fired a 5-0 shutout. Holland whiffed five and allowed five hits in helping Princeton to its sixth straight win. Burns again made the big offensive contribution, keying a six-hit attack with a two-run double.

The Elis, however, came back for a 6-4 win in the closer. Noone failed to hold a 4-2 lead and gave way in the fifth to Dan McPhee, who was tagged with the loss when Al Kolesar ripped a tie-breaking RBI double in the sixth. Remig slapped three singles and scored a run in the loss.

Princeton will visit local rival Rutgers this Wednesday afternoon before heading north to face Dartmouth and Harvard on the final weekend of the EIBL season. Pennsylvania has already wrapped up the league crown, its first since 1975.

The tireless efforts of first-year lacrosse coach Bill Tierney appeared to bear fruit at last when the Tiger stickmen knocked off visiting Villanova, 13-10, last Wednesday. Attacker and co-captain Rob Palumbo led the way with three goals and three assists.

The laxmen reverted to form, however, last Saturday against Cornell, dropping an embarrassingly lopsided, 21-5, decision. The Big Red, paced by Tim Goldstein's hat trick, jumped out to an early 6-0 lead and never looked back. Palumbo had two tallies in the game for the Tigers, who will visit Dartmouth Saturday in a battle for the Ivy cellar.

women posted an 11-10 defeat of Delaware in the season finale at Lourie-Love Field. Catherine McCarthy scored four goals, including the game-winner with less than five minutes to play, to lead the Tiger attack. With the nucleus of the team returning next spring, the program appears to be on the rise in only the second year of Sailer's tenure.

The varsity heavyweight crew journeyed 3,000 miles westward to battle the Australian national team and Washington for the Windermere Cup. Forced to row without top oarsman Doug Burden, who did not make the trip because of a back injury, the Tiger boat placed third, four seconds behind the Aussies.

Closer to home, at Darby, Conn., the undefeated lightweights swept all five races between the "Big Three." The women's varsity, meanwhile, moved to 7-3 with a ten-second triumph over the University of New Hampshire on Lake Carnegie.

Hun Stickmen Ousted From State A Tourney

The up-to-now bright season compiled by the Hun School lacrosse team lost some of its lustre Monday when Hun was eliminated in the first round of the NJISAA A Prep School State tournament. Hun was ousted, 12-8, by Blair Academy, a team it had defeated, 7-4, in its opening game of the season.

"I thought we played a pretty decent game — just not good enough," said Hun coach Dave Faus. Hun, the defending Class B prep school champion, had been seeded fourth. Blair was seeded fifth.

Hun had opted to move up to the A division this year, and the decision proved to be a sound one when Hun won nine of its first ten games to get off to its best start ever. There was one difference, however, in the Blair team that Hun faced on its opening day and the one it lost to Monday: David Brown.

Brown, a PG student, sat out the first meeting for disciplinary reasons; against Hun he teamed with fellow attackman David Low to score seven of Blair's goals, Brown netting five, and Low assisting on four of them. In all, Low had seven assists. "They are two real good athletes and we were unable to stop them in the final period," summed up Faus.

Trailing, 7-3, at halftime, Hun scored three unanswered goals and then tied the score at 7 early in the third period on Hardy Roddy's third goal. Brown gave Blair the lead again two minutes later and the Buccaneers went on to increase their lead to 10-7. Hun cut the margin to 10-8, but the visitors responded with two more goals to clinch the win.

Roddy paced Hun with his three goals, Scott Gordon added two and Paul Greco and Paul Welykoridko each scored one goal and had three assists. Geri Poblete also scored for 9-2 Hun.

"We were in the game. We played well. We were just unable to stop Brown," concluded Faus.

Blair will advance to meet top-seeded Lawrenceville Monday in the semi-finals. Montclair-Kimberly is seeded second and Dwight Englewood third.

Considering its 9-1 record when the seedings were announced, Faus felt that Hun's fourth-ranking was "kind of low. Realistically, I think we should have been seeded at least third, but that was up to the powers that be."

Hun has an easier week coming up. This Wednesday it will host Morristown-Beard in a 3:45 contest. On Saturday at 3 it will entertain Saddle River, which, reported Faus, has a young program. It will be the first meeting between the two schools.

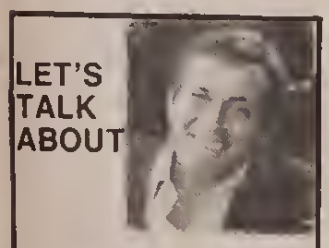
First Loss. In regular-season games last week, Hun defeated Morristown (Pa.) High, 5-3, and earlier suffered its first loss of the season to Voorhees.

Poblete and Roddy each scored twice, Gordon added a single goal, and goalie P.J. Michaud came up with 11 saves to lead Hun past Morristown. "A clear shellacking," was the way Faus termed Hun's 13-4 loss to Voorhees three days earlier.

"They were good," said Faus of visiting Voorhees. "We didn't play terrifically, but we didn't play that badly, either. Voorhees had a very good day."

While the Hun players were upset about the first loss, Faus observed that it probably did his Raiders some good. "There was a lot of pressure going into the game," he said, "knowing the division championship was riding on the line, knowing our unbeaten streak was on the line. They also showed up late — which didn't help matters, but you can't take anything away from them. They played well."

Poblete (two goals) Gordon and Roddy accounted for the Hun scoring. Each also had an assist. Michaud had a season-high 20 saves in the net.



EARLY SPRING PROBLEMS

with Sam DeTuro

Woodwinds Associates

Juniper die-back is showing up again this season. This is caused by winter damage or moisture extremes that occurred last season. For best results, prune dead limbs (whenever practical). Tip blight caused by the fungus Phomopsis often attacks stressed plants but usually does not kill entire branches. To keep this disease in check, spray plants with benomyl plus mencozeb at budbreak, then again 10 and 20 days later. Keep plants well irrigated and fertilized to stay healthy.

Sycamore Anthracnose will also be quite severe this spring if frequent rains and cool temperatures persist through leaf emergence. Keep the Sycamores well fertilized.

Season Winding Down For the PHS Stickmen

A long season stretched a little longer last week for the struggling Princeton High boys' lacrosse team and first-year coach Jim Harris.

The up-and-down, uneven performance by the Little Tigers has Harris searching — so far unsuccessfully — for answers. Last week, although PHS dropped a 7-1 decision to a favored Lawrenceville team, Harris reported that he felt his team had "played a great game... We just couldn't put the ball in the cage — which has been the story of our whole season."

Although he had hoped it would, Harris said the high level of play against Lawrenceville did not carry over against Saturday's contest with visiting Summit. True, the Little Tigers lost by only one goal in overtime, but, insisted Harris, "we just didn't play well. If we had played the same way against Summit as we did against Lawrenceville, Summit would not have had a chance."

The twin setbacks dropped

Tignor Takes a Fourth In Penn Relays' 3000

Princeton High senior Sandra Tignor added yet another achievement last week to her illustrious high school track career.

Posting the fastest time ever in the event by a Mercer County student, Tignor finished fourth in the high school girls' 3,000 meter championsip at the Penn Relays in Philadelphia. Her time of 10:03.2 tied Anne Evans of Reston, Va., for fourth and easily eclipsed the previous County mark of 10:20.4 set in 1981 by Beverly Rockhill of Hamilton.

Winner of the 3000 at the Penn Relays was North Hunterdon's Jodie Bilotta in 9:46.0. Bilotta, a national champion and a longtime rival of Tignor in State meets, had finished second in the 3000 in the Penn Relays in ber junior and sophomore years.

Tignor, who never ran higher than seventh in the pack until the final turns, used a strong finishing kick in the last 100 meters yards to grab fourth. Sbe just missed catching a fading Alexa Lange of Herndoo, Va., who claimed third by 1.1 seconds with a clocking of 10:02.1. Tignor did not learn until three days before the race that she had been accepted to compete in the Penn Relays.

Later in the day, Tignor ran a third leg on Princeton's 4-by-400 relay team that finished third in its high school heat. Cathy Willard ran a 64.1 opening leg, Rachel Spear ran a 62.4, Tignor a 63.1 and Karin Swartz a 63.0 anchor for a combined 4:10.4.

In a tri-meet last week, the PHS girls' team defeated Steinert, 72-50, and Ewing, 70-52, to improve to 5-0-1. Both the girls and the PHS boys' team, which lost to both Ewing and Steinert, will compete Saturday in the annual Bernard Invitational Meet in Bernardsville. In a regular-season tri-meet on Tuesday, PHS will host Lawrence and McCorristin at 3:45.

Against Ewing and Steinert, the PHS girls relied on their mastery in the distance races and a double by Spear in the hurdle events to pile up points. Swartz (Tignor was resting for the Penn Relays) led a PHS sweep in the 3200 with a time of 12:49.8. Sue Patterson was second, Courtney Kingston third. Swartz then finished second to teammate Mora Mather in the 1600, Mather running a 6:30.

Becky Eldon and Julie Nelson ran a 2:41 and 2:42 to finish 1-2 in the 800 meter, Cathy Willard won the 400 in 65.4, Felica Lewis took the 200 in 28.1 and Lea Moore the 100 in 13.7. Spear captured the 110 HH in 18.1 and the 440 intermediate in 69.4. Princeton also won the 4-by-400 relay.

The Little Tigers were less dominant in the field events, where their best showing was a second by Lewis in the long jump. Katherine Berry was third in the high jump and Katherine Perkins third in the javelin.

Valley Division Tightens. Princeton's rare double loss last week in the boys' competition tightened the race in the Valley Division of the CVC. With its win, Ewing is currently 5-2; PHS, the defending league champion, and Hopewell Valley are both 5-3, while West Windsor is 4-3. Steinert is 8-0 and has a lock on the title in the Colonial League.

Princeton had four first-place runners but was virtually shut out in the field events, where its only points came on a third by Balfour Merrill in the shot put.

John Rogerson doubled for the Little Tigers, winning the 1600 meter in 4:38.1, followed by teammate Jerod Neas in 4:41. In the 3200 Rogerson took the event in 10:07, with John Clark second in 10:10.2.

PHS also finished 1-2 in the 800, where Nick Darnton came in first in 2:06, followed by Neas who ran a 2:08. Wagner Marseille captured the 110 hurdles in 14.9 but fell to fourth in the 400 IH.

Does Stress Slow Weight Loss

Stress may have a large impact on your ability to lose weight. For example, if you are a busy executive, your schedule may cause you to eat irregularly. This erratic eating leads to serious overeating at night, when your energy needs are at their lowest, which can cause you to gain weight.

At Diet Center, learning to eat on a schedule is an important part of our Program. This instruction, when combined with all of the other aspects of Diet Center's complete weight-loss program, makes it possible for you to lose weight quickly and to keep it off forever. In fact, on the Diet Center you can lose 15 to 25 pounds in just six weeks. Call today for a free consultation and find out how controlling stress can put you in control of your life.

the Little Tigers to 1-7, with two tough opponents coming up. After a scheduled meeting with Hunterdon Central earlier in the week, PHS will face another difficult assignment when it travels to Montclair High on Saturday. The Blue and White will end its season with games against Moravian Academy on Monday — a late addition to the schedule — and Tuesday's finale at St. Joseph's.

No Reason for It. "We just didn't look good; there's no reason for it," commented Harris on the loss to Summit. The team, he said, was very confident on the day of the game, but when the contest got under way the Little Tigers "couldn't pick up the ball. We threw the ball away. Just about everything that could go wrong went wrong."

After Summit had taken a 2-0 halftime lead, Thad Reynolds, Princeton's leading scorer this season, scored an unassisted goal in the third period, and sophomore Anthony White tied the score with his goal, also unassisted, in the final period. Summit frustrated the PHS comeback, however, when it scored in the first three-minute, sudden-death overtime for a 3-2 triumph.

Harris did cite the play of the PHS defense led by Rob Perle and Jacopo Mazzucato and another fine game by Neil Reeves (15 saves) in goal.

Earlier in the week, Lawrenceville improved to 7-1, when it scored four goals in the third period to break open a game that had been 2-0 at half time. The final tally was Lawrenceville 7, PHS 1.

Reynolds scored Princeton's lone goal in the third period and Reeves was credited with 13 saves. The Larries' all-American player, Andy Towers, was limited to one goal by the PHS defense but contributed four assists.

Netmen Win 2, Lose 1; PHS Record Is Now 10-3

As expected, the Princeton High tennis team had no trouble defeating Steinert Friday and Lawrence High, 4-1, the previous day, for its ninth and tenth victories. But the Little Tigers also suffered their third defeat when they lost, 4-1, to Lawrenceville School earlier in the week.

Ahead are matches with Hightstown this Wednesday and Notre Dame at home on Friday at 3:45. The annual, four-day Mercer County Tournament will begin Monday.

The match with Lawrenceville was interesting to Princeton followers of the team because it pitted PG Bruce Ellis, a former four-year player at Princeton High, against former teammate Stig Leschly in the number one singles. Ellis won the hotly contested first set, 7-5, and then went on to rout Leschly, 6-0, in the second.

Princeton's only point came at second singles where sophomore Nick Leschly outdueled the Larries' Joe Wang, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2. PHS lost both doubles in straight sets.

PHS Pitchers Generous In Two Lopsided Losses

The Princeton High pitching staff was generous again last week. In a pair of losses, it yielded 10 runs to Highland Park on Friday and 11 to Nottingham the previous day. In their last three starts, the Little Tigers have given up 36 runs.

Combine that largesse with the fact that the Little Tigers are not scoring many runs of their own — six in the last three games — and the combination is a losing one. Not surprising, therefore, that PHS is mired in a nine-game losing streak.

After a scheduled makeup of a rained-out game with Montgomery earlier in the week, PHS will be at Hightstown this Wednesday and at Notre Dame on Tuesday. In between, the first round of competition in the Mercer County Tournament will be held on Friday and Saturday. PHS athletic director Carol Parsons said that seedings were expected to be made this Wednesday.

Saturday's game with town rival Hun School, cancelled because of wet grounds, has not been rescheduled, and, according to Parsons, probably won't be because of Hun's tight schedule. Bill McQuade, the Hun coach, told her that he hoped the two teams could meet in the County Tournament.

Highland Park (6-4) was not a gracious host Friday to visiting PHS. The home team Owls scored in every inning, routing

OUT AT THIRD: Princeton Day's Alex Sageblen was tagged out on an attempted steal of third in Sunday's Prep B tournament game against Montclair Kimberley. PDS held a 4-3 lead going into the final inning, but the Cougars rallied for two runs to win 5-4. The loss was the ninth straight for the Panthers.

the Little Tigers, 16-3. PHS starter Matt Sanderson (1-3) gave up 11 runs and eight hits in the four innings he lasted. Jason Plaks came on in the fifth and was roughed up for four more runs and sophomore Chris Kagay came on to pitch the sixth for PHS.

Rightfielder Tom Shockley doubled and singled to account for two of Princeton's four hits. Andy Petrone and Bob Blankstein had the other two.

The previous day, Nottingham won its eighth in a row behind pitcher Jim Smith, who limited PHS to two hits en route to an easy 11-1 win. The win was the third in four starts for Smith and the streaking Northstars who have not lost since dropping their first three games.

Smith did it all for the victors. He backed up his two-hit, nine-strikeout gem with an equally impressive performance at the plate: three hits, including a fifth-inning graod slam, and five runs batted in.

Luis Estrada (0-3) went the distance for PHS and had trouble with his control, walking eight. Only six of the victors' runs were earned. Estrada and Don DiDonato had the only two hits off Smith.

No Relief on the Road As PHS Nine Bows Again

A traveling Princeton High baseball team, which is going a lot of places except in the standings, and a Trenton High team which had not won at home in seven previous attempts, met Monday. Trenton won, 10-5.

The victory was only the fourth in 14 games for the Tornadoes, who limped home with a 7-15 record the year before. For the road-weary Little Tigers, the loss was their tenth in a row after an opening win.

THS pitcher Jason Newsome limited PHS to three hits — one each by Andy Petrone, Scott Petrone and Tim Middleton. The Little Tigers took advantage of some Trenton errors — five in all — to plate three runs in the fourth and tie the game at five. Trenton responded with another run off PHS pitcher Luis Estrada in the same inning to regain the lead and then iced it with four more runs in the sixth.

Estrada, reached for ten hits, went the distance to absorb his fourth loss. THS veteran third baseman Wade Bezco continued to wield a hot bat, as he banged out two hits — the eighth and ninth in his last three games.

This Saturday Is Date For Jr. Olympics Meet

The 17th annual AAU Junior Olympic Track and Field Meet, sponsored by the Princeton Recreation Department, will be held this Saturday beginning at 9 at the Princeton High School track.

All youths between 8 and 13 who reside in the Township or Borough or who attend school here are invited to participate. No fee is charged for this program.

Each participant may compete in up to three of the following events (depending upon one's age group): 50 meter dash, 100 meter dash, 400 meter run, 800 meter run, mile run, running long jump, high jump, running triple jump, and shot put.

winners will advance to district and state competitions. Last year, Princeton's Bram Reynolds advanced to the national finals in California.

Volunteers are needed. Those interested should call Tom Mladenetz at the Recreation Office, 921-9480.

Tennis Under the Lights At Community Park

Evening play will begin on Friday at the Community Park tennis complex.

The complex consists of 15 tennis courts in two different sections. Nine courts are so-called "cushion" courts," with a surface that is softer than most hard surface courts. The other six courts are standard hard surface courts and have lights for evening play.

The Recreation Department offers both resident and nonresident memberships for use of the courts. A membership entitles tennis players to free access to all courts for both evening and daytime play and to make phone reservations in advance. Those holding tennis membership are allowed to bring up to three guests on four separate occasions, free.

The cost for membership is $35 for adults who are Princeton residents and $70 for nonresident. Children's memberships are $20 and $40, respectively. Seniors pay $15.

The season runs until October 23. Evening play runs from Friday to October 2. For additional information, call 921-9480.

Hun Nine Is Top-Seeded In Baseball Tournament

Off its 11-1 record, the Hun School baseball team has been seeded No. 1 in the Division A, NJISAA State baseball tournament. Hun will play the winner of the Lawrenceville School-Blair game on Monday at 3:45 on its home diamond. Lawrenceville is seeded fourth in the tournament, Pingry second and Peddie third.

In regular-season games this year, Hun has beaten all of the seeded teams. "We were lucky enough to get all through the preps without a loss, but tournament time is different," said a cautious Hun coach Bill McQuade.

Hun will also participate in the Mercer Country Tournament whose opening round starts this weekend, and Hun should be seeded high in this event, too.

"We have a couple of tournament games coming; I just hope we can keep it going," said McQuade.

In regular-season games, Hun early this week was scheduled to be at the Marie Katzenbach School, a recent addition to the schedule, and will oppose Lawrence High on Friday at 3:45 at the Cardinals' home field.

If McQuade sounds cautious about the upcoming tournament games, it is understandable. Hun was not overpowering in winning its last two games.

Pitching saved the day in a 4-2 victory over Rutgers Prep, as Noble Ejiogu fashioned a sparkling two-hitter for his second win. The previous day, the pitching failed to hold up, but some timely hitting, especially by Raphael Garcia who drove in five runs, enabled Hun to outlast Newark Academy, 10-9.

Hyldahl Hits Game Winner. After Hun had tied its game with Rutgers Prep in the third and Ejiogu was blanking the visitors the rest of the way, Hun won the game in the fifth when freshman Matt Hyldahl singled home the winning runs. "He's a nice little ballplayer," said McQuade of Hyldahl, who was filling in for the sidelined Larry Marcinkus.

The previous day, Hun took a four-run, first-inning lead against Newark Academy, when Garcia unloaded a three-run homer. The Hun third-sacker would go on to add a triple and a single in driving in five runs, but it was not enough. "It went back and forth the whole game," said McQuade. Ejiogu, who took over for winning pitcher Pat Murphy (3-1) with two down in the fifth, was protecting a three-run lead when he surrendered two runs. In the last inning, Newark had one run in, runners on first and second, and no one out, when McQuade called on Carl Zentmayer. Zentmayer, a transfer from Hopewell Valley, struck out the side to preserve the win. "It's nice. It's not often we've had that kind of relief pitching where a guy will come in and strike out the side," said McQuade.

With his hitting, Garcia took over the batting lead for the Raiders with a .480 mark. Danny Martz is still batting over .400, but some of the other Hun hitters have tailed off — "as I knew they would have to," said McQuade.

Still, that 11-1 record is an uncommon achievement for the Raiders. "I can't even remember when we've done that well," said McQuade. "It would probably go back to the first years when I was here when we were 14-2 one time." McQuade is in his 18th season at Hun.

PHS Girls Practicing Ps For Busy Lacrosse Week

In its only outing last week, the Princeton High girls' lacrosse team was prepared for a competitive game against Chatham, a team it had defeated by one goal the previous year.

21:39 of the second half and six PHS players scored two goals each as PHS coasted to a 16-1 win.

Since then, the Little Tigers have been idle, enabling them to practice what PHS coach Joyce Jones calls the three Ps: passing, possession and patience. PHS will have to be 'P'fect if it hopes to get through its next games unscathed.

Presently 5-2, PHS was scheduled to oppose rival Princeton Day School for the second time early in the week In its first meeting with the Panthers, PHS triumphed, 12-7, and Jones reports that she is looking forward to another competitive contest.

This Wednesday, in the first of three consecutive home games at its Riverside School field, PHS will entertain Columbia and Chatham again on Friday. Both games will start at 4 p.m. On Monday, PHS will host its longtime rival, but no longer league foe, Hopewell Valley, at 3:35. PHS is now a member of the Garden State League and trails Montville in the standings. Tuesday, PHS will be at Montclair High.

"We have a busy week ahead of us," confirmed Jones.

The Little Tiger goals, however, remain the same: win as many as possible to achieve a higher seeding in the State tournament later this month, and try to overtake Montville in the league standings.

PDS Girls' Lacrosse Wins Two More for 6-4 Record

A pair of victories last week helped the PDS girls' lacrosse team raise its record to 6-4.

Susan Lebovitz and Jenny Myers led the Panthers to a 13-6 win over Montclair-Kimberley Academy last Wednesday. Lebovitz had three goals and one assist and Myers tallied three also. Maureen Cahill, Winnie Roberts and Alicia Collins each scored twice for the Panthers. Carrie Regan and Liz Bylin picked up assists.

The Blue and White led by just two at the half, 7-5, but outscored MKA, 6-1, in the second. Goalie Elisa DeRochi had four saves.

On Friday, coach Kim Bedesem's team journeyed to Chatham, and returned with an 11-4 triumph. Myers pumped in four goals this time; Collins and Cahill added two apiece. Single tallies were scored by Lebovitz, Hillary Miller and Regan. DeRochi had a superb game in goal making 18 saves.

After a return match scheduled to be played against Princeton High this past Tuesday, PDS will meet Dwight-Englewood on Wednesday at home, and Summit High away on Saturday.

The boys' lacrosse team was ot as fortunate, dropping its ninth and 10th contests of the season. Last Tuesday, the Panthers lost, 15-2, to Bridgewater East, and Friday they were on the short end of an 11-3 score against Hunterdon Central. Three games remain on the schedule: this Saturday against Lawrenceville at 2 p.m. at home, next Tuesday against Westfield High, and Wednesday, May 18, against Hun.

PDS Tennis Wins a Pair, Loses at Newark Event

The Princeton Day tennis team won a pair of matches last week over Dwight-Englewood and Pingry, but got knocked out in the first round of the Newark Invitational

The Panthers, who were scheduled to play Lawrenceville this past Tuesday, raised their record to 8-2, pending the outcome of that match. They will meet Rutgers Prep this Thursday away, and then prepare for the Mercer County Tournament to be played next week.

In the 5-0 shutout of Dwight, Reed Newhall won a pair of 6-3 sets, Jivan Datta, won 6-3, 6-4, and Scott Newhall, lost just three games. In the doubles Jason Hollander and David Ragsdale won 6-4, 6-3, and George Dodds and Doug Adderley won 6-2, 6-4.

The 3-2 victory over Pingry was more of a contest. Reed Newball and Datta won in straight sets, but Scott Newhall lost a third-set tiebreaker at third singles. Another third-set tiebreaker set Dodds and Adderley down to defeat, but the first doubles team won its match to secure the victory.

The Newark Invitational matched most of the top teams in the state against each other, and PDS had more than it could handle in the first round against Cumberland Regional. The only winner in the 3-1 loss was Scott Newhall, who played another three-setter. Reed Newhall's match was stopped in the third set, once Cumberland had clinched its victory.

Ficarro's Wins Two More Edges 3-Season Rival, 4-3

The Princeton-based Steve Ficarro's Auto Body women's softball team last week improved its record to 4-0 in the Mercer County Women's League with a pair of victories, a 5-0 shutout of Players and a 4-3 win over league arch-rival Three Seasons.

In the game against Players, Grace Durland, Dee Discavage and Doreen Ragazzo were each 2-for-3, and Cindy Lombardo, Judi Grisham and Debbie Smyth all had RBI singles. Ragazzo was the winning pitcher.

In the win over Three Seasons, Ficarro's scored two runs in the top of the first inning on hits by Janet Swick, Durland, Discavage, Beth Ault and Cee Aerstin. Then, in the top of the fourth, Ficarro's added two more runs on hits by Dee Vertucci, Cheryl Silva, Lombardo, and an RBI walk by Swick. Three Seasons scored three times in the bottom of the inning, aided by a strong wind which came up quickly and caused great difficulty for Ficarro outfielders on several fly balls. In the top of the sixth, rain came; after a delay, the game, which was by now official, was called by the umpires. Clare Baxter was the winning pitcher.

Ficarros' will next oppose Jan Creighton's Auto Body & Towing on Thursday at 7:30 on Mercer County Park's Field 3.

Register Now for Race At Princeton's June Fete

A highlight of the annual Princeton Hospital Fete, the 10-kilometer race will begin at 9 a.m. on June 11, the date of this year's "A Country Fete."

To register by mail, send $8 payable to June Fete to Fete Race Committee, 32 North Mill Road, Cranbury, 08512. Registration will close at 8:45 the day of the race; after that the fee is $10. All proceeds benefit the Medical Center at Princeton.

The overall male and female winners will receive a cup from the Princeton Bank, and a $100 gift certificate, for use at Competitive Sport, from the law firm of Mason, Griffin & Pierson.

All entrants will be eligible for random drawings, including a weekend for two at Scanticon. T-shirts with the Fete Race logo will be presented to all entrants as long as the supply lasts.
